ROXBURY BURGLAR BATTLE

R. R. AGENT DEFIES GUNMEN, SAVES CASH

MISS M. MOORE SCRUGGS

West street tailor testified she selected samples and ordered two suits of clothes for her 6-foot, 2-inch "gentleman friend," but refused to pay the bill of $225. She takes the stand today.

$225 BILL SENT TO HER BY TAILOR

Jackson Claims She Ordered Clothes, Bossed the Fitting, and Said "Charge It to Me!"

Whether Miss M. Moore Scruggs, comely and stylish, shall pay $225 for two suits for her "gentleman friend"—C. B. Pierce for years with the International Trust Company—was argued today before Judge Albert Brackett in Municipal Court.

William Jackson, fashionable West street tailor, referred to as "the best dressed man in town," avers that Miss Scruggs ordered the clothing for her "friend" and directed him to send his bill to her apartment at No. 60 Fenway.

Miss Scruggs denies the accusation and declares Pierce ordered the suits for himself. As proof of her declaration she has an affidavit from Pierce, who is ill and unable to appear, to the effect that he ordered the clothes.

Jackson, testifying for himself, told how Miss Scruggs came to him in September, 1922, with a story that she wished to get two suits for a "gentleman friend" who was going to California.

ADMIRED HIS CLOTHES.

"I asked her how she happened to come to me," the tailor said. "She told me she had seen me on the street and had always admired my clothes, which is how she happened to come to me."

Miss Scruggs, he asserted, carried

Parrot Invades Beacon Hill Residence

Miss Mary C. Gray of Beacon Hill is looking for the owner of a parrot which flew into the Gray house two weeks ago and made itself at home. The feathered foundling, the Grays say, proved unwelcome. It doesn't talk, sing, whistle or even swear. It eats ravenously, however, and has been given a temporary home in a bird store.

HUSBAND POSES AS BACHELOR

Another interesting angle developed today in the dual identity case of the woman known in private life as Mrs. J. A. Sweeney of Linden street, Allston, and in the business world as Aimee A. Jones, one of the two trustees whom Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater seeks to oust from control of her $7,000,000 fortune.

Her husband is known to one set of friends as married, while by others he has been regarded as a bachelor.

James A. Sweeney, husband of Aimee A. Jones-Sweeney for the last ten years, is district passenger

ROXBURY BURGLAR FIGHTS 3

Desperate Battle With Patrolman in Rear of Warren Street Store

Patrolman J. J. Sullivan, three months on the force, heard a crash of glass while patrolling Warren street, Roxbury today.

Tracing the sound he went to the rear of the Bernard Lopez fruit store at No. 361, near Dale street. He found a shattered window.

He searched until he discovered it figure behind a counter swinging a twenty-four-inch steel jimmy.

"Come out or I'll shoot," Sullivan ordered.

"Like hell. I don't want you to take me alive," snarled the man.

The officer advanced. The burglar leaped, swinging at the policeman's head. They closed.

They fought fully five minutes, Sullivan asserts. The officer finally overpowered his quarry.

Sounds of the struggle awoke neighbors. The furors also brought Patrolman Sloan. A call was sent to Dudley street station and Patrolman Friel arrived with the patrol wagon.

GERMAN STRIKERS TAKE TOWN

Communists Seize Place After Severe Fighting; Big Revolt Menaces Rhineland

Essen, May 24 (AP).—The Communists have taken possession of police headquarters at Gelsenkirchen and have hoisted the Red flag over the building.

Reports from German sources say that five persons were killed and sixty-one wounded in the fighting.

The Communists took possession of police headquarters, smashed everything in the building, and then fired it.

The commanders of the mob had evidently marshaled their forces in preparation for an onslaught, as the whole action was carried out on military lines under the orders of the leaders.

DEMAND FOOD PRICE CUT.

The trouble began to take serious form yesterday afternoon, when a Communist "Commission of Control" visited the shops, demanding prices of foodstuffs be cut in half. Housewives hearing the stores were complying with this demand swooped down upon them and exhausted supplies.

Meanwhile the streets began to fill and a general scramble ensued. As the security police had been expelled in February the town was without protection except for firemen doing patrol duty.

This force was called upon to

"STOP!" CRIES LADY ASTOR; ENGLAND IS ORDERED TO QUIT POKING FUN AT U. S.

London, May 24 (A. P.)—Lady Astor, American-born member of the British aristocracy, appealed to the people of her adopted country to treat America fairly on the prohibition question, and to cease making a joke of it, in a speech today at a luncheon given in honor of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

"It is very galling to have somebody always making fun," she said, "and it has got to stop."

If British relations with America were to be continued at their best, she continued, England must look kindly on the great experiment which the American people were conducting.

TOSSES $1,500 INTO OCEAN; THOUGHT MONEY WAS BOGUS

New York, May 24.—Michael J. Sullivan, of Salem, and Izzy Jacobs, of this city, who were detained upon their arrival here on the Homeric, on charges of having in their possession counterfeit money, which they had been passing around as "souvenirs," were shocked today when they learned the money was genuine.

"And I threw $1,500 of it overboard," Sullivan exclaimed. He still possessed twenty-eight bills of $10 denomination. The men were released.

CANADIAN COMMONS VOTES FOR RECIPROCITY WITH U. S.

Ottawa, Ont., May 24 (I.N.S.).—The House of Commons passed the budget of Finance Minister W. S. Fielding, containing a reciprocity offer to the United States.

In closing the debate, Fielding said:

"We stand for reciprocity with the United States. The Liberal party is ready to negotiate reciprocity with Washington whenever we can get a reasonable agreement."

U. S. DEMANDS $25,000 FOR KILLING BY CHINESE

Peking, May 24. (AP).—The American Legation has transmitted to the Foreign Office a demand of $25,000 as indemnity for the death of Charles Coltman, an American, who was shot by Chinese soldiers last December, in an alleged dispute over the export of silver.

ASK RECALL OF WIEDFELDT TO HEAD KRUPP'S WORKS

Berlin, May 24. (I. N. S.)—The Krupps today asked the government to recall Herr Wiedfeldt, German Ambassador to Washington, so he can become director of the Krupp plant at Essen. Herr Krupp Von Bohlen und Halbach, acting head of the works, recently was sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment by a French military court.

FIVE KILLED IN WRECK; 4 VICTIMS RIDING BLINDS

Abilene, Tex., May 24.—At least five persons were killed, including a negro porter, and four men said to have been riding the "blind" baggage, one engineman probably fatally injured and two or three others less seriously hurt, when two Texas & Pacific passenger trains collided early today midway between Cisco and Putnam, Tex.

MAN GROUND TO DEATH; WOMAN KILLED BY SHOCK

New York, May 24 (I. N. S.)—Caught in a dough mixing machine, Gabriel Acampora was slowly crushed to death today while a blacksmith pounded the machine with a sledge-hammer in an effort to free him.

Excitement over the baker's predicament spread, and Mrs. Augustina Scuilla, a neighbor, dropped dead from shock.

GAVE 'FLO' NEARLY A MILLION

Mrs. Stillman Reveals Vast Sum Settled by Banker on Girl and Her Son

New York, May 24.—James A. Stillman gave Flo Leeds and their four-year-old boy Jay nearly a million dollars.

Most of it was showered on them by the banker in the forms of trust funds, stocks, bonds, real estate and jewelry, according to affidavits by Mrs. Stillman and her counsel, John F. Brennan.

Friends of Stillman called attention today to these affidavits as answer to the assertion of Flo Leeds that Stillman left her and Jay in financial distress now.

The affidavits of Mrs. Stillman and Attorney Brennan sum up the Stillman gifts to Flo Leeds and the boy in five principal items, thus:

In trust to Flo Leeds	$250,000
In trust to Jay Ward Leeds	250,000
Park avenue apartment	55,000
Jewelry	100,000
Stocks and bonds	194,000
Total	$849,000

Attorney Brennan indicated in his affidavit that this was not all.

After reciting a long list of gift-

RISKS LIFE TO FOIL BANDITS

Refuses to Give Up $3,000 Payroll in Face of Two Automatic Pistols

The cool daring of Emmerson Thompson, station master at the East Somerville station of the B. & M. railroad on Cambridge street, Charlestown, saved a $3,000 payroll for his employers today when two gunmen covered him with automatics and demanded the money or his life.

Thompson had taken the money from his safe and placed it on his desk in his cage. He stepped out of the cage for a moment, but locked the door behind him.

Two young men he thought were employes coming in for their pay came into the station.

Suddenly one of them shoved a gun against his breast and said:

"Give me that payroll, and keep still or I'll shoot."

"What payroll?" asked Thompson calmly, as he backed away toward the street door. The other bandit flourished his gun and said:

"You know what payroll. The one you get every Thursday."

"It's late—hasn't come yet," re-

CHINESE BANDITS PAROLE AMERICAN

Shanghai, May 24 (A. P.).—L. B. Powell, American newspaper publisher of Shanghai, who has been held a prisoner by the Chinese bandits, has been paroled to take part in new conferences for release of the captives, according to advices received here.

MELLON SOLVES SHIP BOOZE TANGLE, BUT KEEPS IT DARK

Washington, May 24.—Indications were given at the treasury today that Secretary Mellon had found a way for reconciling the Supreme Court's recent prohibition decision with foreign laws requiring ships of their nationals to carry liquor as crew rations.

The belief was expressed that the regulations necessary to carry out the high court decision barring liquoring within the teritorial waters of the United States would be actually promulgated within a few days.

Officials refused to disclose the course which the treasury appeared to have adopted in dealing with the situation developed by the court's ruling.

The affidavit of Mrs. Stillman says:

"I am further informed and believe that my husband has purchased for the woman known as Mrs. Leeds a large duplex apartment at No. 696 Park avenue, New York. He gave her automobiles, the number of which is unknown to deponent.

"As deponent is informed and believes, he has given her in her own right the sum of $250,000, and a deed of trust for her son, J. Ward Leeds, amounting to another $250,000."

WORTH $319,000.

The list, compiled by Attorney Brennan in the affidavit of securities he believes Stillman gave Flo Leeds, amounts to more than $319,000, but part of these may be included in the alleged trust funds mentioned by Mrs. Stillman. The Brennan list and the estimated value of the securities is:

U. S. Rubber Co. gold notes	$200,000

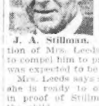
"If Mrs. Stillman ever places Jim Stillman in a position where he can marry my daughter, and he doesn't do it, I'll horsewhip him within an inch of his life."

Thus declares James S. Lawlor, Sixth avenue plumber and father of Flo Leeds.

To a friend, Mrs. Lawlor said:

"STILLMAN'S MONEY DIRTY."

"I never have and I never will take a penny of Stillman's dirty money. I couldn't do it and be true to the teachings of my mother and church. I would sooner see Florence in purgatory than the wife of that man.



J. A. Stillman.

Meanwhile, the expected legal action of Mrs. Leeds against Stillman to compel him to provide for the boy was expected to be filed.

Mrs. Leeds says she has 200 letters she is ready to offer as testimony in proof of Stillman's paternity of the child.

"I did not keep these letters with the idea of using them against Mr. Stillman," she said. "The fact when I received them I never thought it would be necessary to beg the father of this little boy to take care of him. I don't want any of his money for myself, but he must take care of Jay. I kept these letters as any woman would keep the letters of the man she loves and trusts."

Mrs. Leed, said that if Stillman were in a position to marry her and offered to do so she would marry him, but only to give a legal name to her boy, and that she would leave Stillman immediately afterwards.

It was believed that this statement of Mrs. Leeds carries the intent of instituting a branch of proceedings against Stillman, if he is divorced.

Mrs. Leeds' lawyer pointed out that in one of his letters Stillman wrote to Mrs. Leeds:

"I love you with all my desire, to acknowledge you and your boy before the world."

Arrest Landlord on Complaint of Eavesdropping

William Beaverman of No. 82 Charles street, Charlestown, owner of a house at No. 151 Davison street, Chelsea, was arrested on a charge of eavesdropping on complaint of his tenant, Mrs. Mary C. Breen.

Beaverman denies the charge, declaring he had come to the house to collect rent due him. The case is the first of its kind on record and provides for a maximum penalty of two years in jail or a fine of $500.

FIGHTS BURGLAR IN ROXBURY

The prisoner was handled in. En route to the station he made a second desperate attempt to escape. The three officers fought desperately to overpower him and prevent him from throwing away contents of his pockets.

At station nine the man gave his name as Ansel Baker, of Lebanon street. It was also said he is known some times as Franklin Burke.

While the police were questioning him in connection with thirty burglaries committed in Roxbury recently and five that were reported last night, officers noted blood stains through Baker's trousers.

Examination disclosed a deep three inch cut on the knee. He was taken to City Hospital for treatment. He will be arraigned tomorrow.

In the meantime the police will try to connect him with the epidemic of store robberies the past two weeks.

Mrs. Slater Not Worried Over Mere $7,000,000

New York, May 24.—A squabble over the trusteeship or a mere $7,000,000 is too trifling to worry about.

That is the opinion of Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater, of this city and Boston, who seeks through the courts to regain control of a $7,000,000 estate, now in the hands of trustees who refuses to relinquish control.

"It's just a little thing—not much to worry about," said Mrs. Slater when interviewed in her Park avenue apartment, "and besides, I'm not sure the estate amounts to $7,000,000. It might be considerably less."

Mrs. Slater voluntarily placed her estate in the hands of trustees to relive her of business worry during an extended European tour.

Frederick J. Bradlee, actuary at the Back Bay branch of the Old Colony Trust Company, and Mrs. Aimee A. Jones Sweeney, her confidential secretary, were appointed trustees with the "understanding" the trusteeship would terminate at her pleasure. No bond was required of the trustees, nor was there anything said about remuneration to the trustees for their services.

When Mrs. Slater returned from Europe and requested the trustees to resign, they refused.

"I do not understand what motive is back of this," Mrs. Slater said. "I have always been in the confidence of Miss Jones, my secretary, and she has had my confidence. I shall bring no charges against either Miss Jones or Mr. Bradlee. I hold them both in high esteem. In the court action I am bringing, I want the estate returned to my hands, and I want an account made. That is all.

"Miss Jones and I shall always remain the best of friends. I can't explain why she should make a complete volte face in a week's time and oppose me in my effort to regain my estate."

CAPE COD FIRES FLARE AGAIN

Sandwich, May 24.—Fires in the woodland in this section of Cape Cod had burned over more than a thousand acres today, but the flames were not dangerously approaching any village and no buildings had been destroyed.

The fires, which died down during the night, flared up with a freshening of the breeze today and large parties of residents turned out to fight them. While some good timber has been destroyed, most of the land burned over was covered with scrub growth.

RAIL LABOR BOARD RE-ELECTS HOOPER

'Radio Thief'

CONSTANTINE MURPHY

Constantine Murphy, of Boston, one of the three "radio thieves" who have been looting radio stores, pleaded guilty to larceny of radio apparatus from several Lynn stores in Lynn court today. He was given three months suspended sentence, placed on probation for a year, and ordered to make restitution in the sum of $45. On his release he was arrested by the Lowell police on two counts in that city.

plied Thompson. By this time he had backed to the door and stepped into the street.

A minute later the bandits ran out onto Cambridge street, leaped into an auto that was waiting for them with a man at the wheel, and rode away in the direction of Somerville.

The car number was taken by Thompson, who reported it to be "Mass. 25,449."

The bandits were described as young men of twenty-four or twenty-five, about 5 feet 9 inches tall, one wearing a gaberdine raincoat and the other a dark suit and cap.

Agent Thompson is sixty-seven years old and has been station master at East Somerville thirty-eight years.

It is believed the robbers would have forced the station master's office, but sighted Patrolman John J. Sullivan of the Charlestown station a short distance away. They then hurried outside and drove off, after Thompson had reached the sidewalk, fearing he would call Sullivan.

The station master, however, could not see the policeman from his position. Sullivan saw the car and noted its number before he saw Thompson.

The car is said by the police to have been stolen from a Dorchester plumber named Murphy.

SWISS CITIZENS IN RUSSIA ATTACKED

Copenhagen, May 24, (I.N.S.)—Anti-Swiss demonstrations were reported today from Petrograd and Odessa as a result of the accusation by the Soviet government at Moscow that the Swiss were responsible for the assassination of Vatslav Vorovsky at Lausanne. Swiss Nationals were said to have been attacked and their property damaged. Swiss passports vises were refused.

The interference seemed only to add fuel to the fire, and the crowd began counter-attacking. In one instance the demonstrators attacked a squad of firemen occupying a fire truck, wounded several of them and burned the truck used as a patrol wagon.

MANY KILLED BY FIREMEN.

The firemen began using their revolvers, resulting in several persons being killed and others wounded. At least forty wounded are reported treated in hospitals.

Additional French troops were ordered into Gelsenkirchen, which is in the Essen region six miles north-west of Bochum, but it was announced there was no intention of the French to interfere so long as the demonstrators did not clash with the French military.

away a handful of samples and a day or so later reappeared with a man six feet two inches in height, who had nothing to say while she chose a blue suiting and a brown pin stripe.

"She gave me her telephone number to make arrangements for fitting," Jackson continued. "The man didn't say fifty words."

"At the final fitting she said she was 'very much pleased,' and told me, 'Now send me a bill.' I told her I had not understood that credit was to be extended and she said 'Well, I have charge accounts at all the big Boston stores.' I found this true and sent the suits to No. 6[illegible] Fenway, the address she gave me."

George Denver, widely known before the Volstead era as owner of three cafes and a dealer in the Boston Liquor Dealers' Association, came to the stand to tell of seeing Miss Scruggs come in to order suits. He told of overhearing part of her conversation with Jackson.

"I consider him (Jackson) the best dressed man in Boston," Denver stated during the course of his examination.

"Well, you are pretty well dressed yourself," came the reply from the attorney.

"I have been for thirty-two years," modestly admitted Mr. Denver. "You see I have one for every day in the week."

The court interpreted this last to mean that he has a wardrobe of at least seven suits.

Miss Scruggs was on the stand today.

Wife Who Aided 'Rival' Is Secret Bride

BROCKTON STRIKERS PARADE

2,600, Carrying Only Stars and Stripes, March to Mass Meeting on Playground

Brockton, May 24.—Twenty-six hundred striking shoeworkers paraded through the streets today to the O'Donnell Playground, where a crowd of 15,000 men and women were gathered.

The parade was an orderly demonstration. The only banner carried was the stars and stripes.

The parade started at the Club Nationale, headquarters of the newly formed Brockton District Shoe Workers' Union, led by President Joseph F. Lacouture, Secretary Dennis F. McCarthy and Director Nellie McHugh.

The packers and dressers, who began the strike two weeks ago, followed 100 per cent. strong, nearly one-third of the paraders being included in this group.

ATTACK OLD UNION.

At the playground most of the speakers directed their shafts at the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union of America, from which the strikers have seceded. They called it a discredited tool of the manufacturers to keep the workers in subjection, and an incubus around the neck of labor in the Brockton district.

The State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation was also scored by the speakers, who demanded a local board of arbitration to settle the present strike and all future disputes between the workers and their employers.

James Riley presided and the speakers included Lacouture, McCarthy, Mrs. McHugh and other leaders. The crowd enthusiastically cheered the speakers.

A public statement was issued by the new union today, calling upon the manufacturers to end the present conflict by meeting a committee of the union preparatory to an arbitration of the demands of the strikers by a fair board of arbitrators.

WHITMAN WORKERS OUT.

The statement sets forth that the daily growth of the strike has proved that the shoe workers of the Old Colony have definitely turned their backs on the old Boot and Shoe Workers' Union forever.

The ranks of the strikers were swelled today when eighty lasters, thirty vampers and three lacers left their jobs at the Commonwealth Shoe and Leather Company's plant in Whitman.

The walkout of these men and women, the strike leaders assert, will tie up the Whitman plants.

The entire force left in a body shortly after the morning whistle blew and the department was closed.

At the same time three vampers and one lacer quit work in the Metropolitan Shoe Company's plant in East Whitman.

The Sole Fasteners' and Rough Rounders' Union here has voted to strike and to secede from the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union.

This is the tenth shoe workers' union to have voted for strike and secession, leaving but three unions loyal to the old parent organization. There are, normally, thirteen shoe workers' unions in Brockton.

Police interfered for the first time in the strike when Joseph E. Lacouture, president of the new Brockton District Shoe Workers' Union, attempted to hold a mass meeting in South Braintree.

Lacouture was met at the railroad station by a detachment of mounted police, who notified him that street meetings would not be allowed in South Braintree.

This was the second frost of the month, the first coming May 11.

It will be fair and cool tonight and tomorrow.

Kidnaps Baby in Chelsea

At top, Bernard Bean, two years old, who was stolen by his own father, Joseph Bean, from baby carriage on Congress street, Chelsea. The boy was being wheeled along by his mother, Mrs. Sadie Bean, shown in inset, at the time. Diagram shows how the father snatched the child from the carriage and made his escape.

FATHER 'STEALS' CHILD

Snatches Infant From Carriage in Chelsea; Eludes Wife's Pursuit

Two-year-old Bernard Bean was snatched from his baby carriage by Joseph Bean, his father, and carried off. After a thrilling chase on Congress avenue, Chelsea, by Mrs. Sadie Bean, the baby's mother, the father escaped.

The police, with a warrant, searched the father's home at No. 116 Essex street, Chelsea, the home of his sister in Roxbury and the home of his brother in Springfield, but no trace of the man or baby was found.

CHARGES THREATS.

Mrs. Bean told the Chelsea police that the "kidnaping" was the climax of three years of marital unhappiness which recently had developed into alleged threats by her husband to ruin her looks and that of her baby by the use of vitriol.

"He said he never would support a woman and he was in a rage because I would not take him into my mother's home and provide him with food and clothing," explained the distracted mother of the missing baby.

TELLS OF DESERTION.

Mrs. Bean, in her story of the "kidnaping" to the police, said:

"Mr. Bean is thirty-three years old. I am twenty-five. We were married on September 6, 1919. Two weeks before my baby was born my husband became cruel. He struck me down. Then he deserted me. Later he kept coming to the home of my mother, No. 113 Congress avenue, Chelsea, demanding that I give him money and support him. Six weeks ago he entered my mother's home, grabbed me by the throat and choked me.

"I was walking with baby on Congress street, Frances Sachs, twelve years old, my little cousin, was with me. Suddenly my husband came upon us. Almost before I realized what was happening he tore the strap from baby's carriage, snatched the little one in his arms and started away on the run."

He died in a police ambulance on the way to a hospital. Miss Beedy was unable to tell anything regarding the accident. Police say she has no driving license, and it is probable that charges will be placed against her.

For weeks Federal agents, it is said, have been attempting to gain entrance to the club, which has been catering exclusively to well known people of the theatrical profession.

IRENE CASTLE FOR 'DANCE BUMPER'

New York, May 24.—Her shoulders twitching nervously "under the strain of responsibility for the modern dance delirium," Irene Castle sailed for Europe with praise for the "dance bumper" described in a dispatch from Paris as a contrivance to keep dancing partners from touching. She said:

Irene Castle.

"Dancing has become to indecent in many parts of the country that one really has to shut one's eyes, it is so embarrassing. I think the 'bumper' idea might well be put into effect in the majority of cities in this country.

"And as for the marathon dance—what an atrocity," she concluded.

JAIL LANDLORDS WHO PERMIT BOOZE SALES

Springfield, May 24.—What is construed as the first move on the part of Massachusetts authorities to hold landlords responsible for liquor selling on the premises was made by Judge Webster Thayer in Superior Court here.

Judge Thayer announced that hereafter the landlord would be responsible with his tenant if after proper notice he allows further selling of liquor on his premises.

Judge Thayer stated that landlords of persons convicted of illegal sales of liquor would be notified. The law specifically provides for such notice, it was pointed out, and the avowed purpose of the court is to carry it out.

The landlord who shares in the profit of liquor selling must bear after share in the penalty when the responsibility is fixed on him. According to District Attorney Charles H. Wright, injunctions can be obtained against landlords, and the violator of an injunction can be brought to trial on a charge of contempt of court. Jail then becomes a possible penalty.

St. Louis—Edward C. Robbins, 82 years old, former commander of the United Confederate Veterans, died here of an injury suffered when he was struck by a bicycle January 1.

PRAISE CURZON FOR "DRAWING OUT" RUSSIA

London, May 24 (AP).—At Prime Minister Baldwin's first Cabinet meeting today, Lord Curzon presented the latest note from Soviet Russia.

The subject received scant attention for the moment, except it was stated, for congratulations extended to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs for at last having obtained a diplomatic communication from Moscow which did not contain recriminatory language.

It is generally thought the present trade relations with Russia will be continued and the disputed questions remaining settled at the conference table.

The latest Russian note is received favorably by the Liberal newspapers.

PREDICTS INSULIN WILL SAVE LIVES OF MANY IN CHILDBIRTH

METHOD OF HOW NEW CURE WAS FOUND IS REVEALED

"Insulin will help to bring through many diabetic mothers who without treatment would be unable to survive childbirth," declared Dr. F. Gorham Brigham of No. 35 Bay State road, Back Bay, a leading authority on the treatment of diabetes, who has just returned from a convention of the New York Medical Association held at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

"Insulin is a new serum for diabetes, but in my opinion it will revolutionize the treatment of that disease and give to more than a million men, women and children suffering from it a serum which is both inexpensive and simply administered," continued Dr. Brigham.

"It has been tried on several patients and so far has proven successful. Because experiments on animals were necessary to discover the effects of insulin, many physicians attacked anti-vivisectionists for ignorantly raising obstacles to successful research work in medicine."

LONG SEARCHED FOR.

The American has obtained from Dr. J. J. R. MacLeod, professor of physiology at Toronto University, and a colleague and friend of Dr. Frederick G. Banting of that city, the discoverer of insulin, an interview in which he discussed insulin and its use in detail. This is the first public exposition of the subject.

Dr. MacLeod said that since 1907 investigators had known that there must be some such substance as insulin had endeavored to separate it from the pancreas of a slaughtered animal. Usually it is now obtained from the sweetbreads of cows and animals slaughtered for food. It was explained.

Professor MacLeod went on to say:

"Some of the investigators, notably Dr. E. L. Scott, of New York; Dr. Murlin, of Rochester, and Dr. Kilmer, succeeded in showing that insulin must be there, but their researches were too indefinite to make it justifiable to try the extracts on diabetes patients.

TIED THE DUCTS

"Dr. Banting conceived the idea that the uncertain nature of the earliest results was due to the fact that the extracts contained digestive ferments which destroyed the insulin that might have been present.

"Knowing that the portion of the pancreas which produces these extracts becomes largely destroyed, Dr. Banting found a way to the final result by tying the ducts. The portion of the pancreas that produces insulin was thus saved.

"Dr. Banting succeeded in making extracts from ductless pancreas. In this way he circumvented the destructive action of the digestive ferment.

"He injected these extracts in diabetic dogs and found that the main symptoms of diabetes could be removed. C. H. Best was associated with Dr. Banting in this work.

"The next problem was to prepare extracts from ordinary beef pancreas and this was found possible through the use of alcohol as an extractive substance. The alcohol evidently prevented the destruction of the digestive ferments and dissolved out the insulin.

"B. J. Collip joined the work at this stage and succeeded by a precipitation process in isolating from these extracts a highly purified form of insulin which could be used for continuous administration in man.

"Meanwhile it was shown that this purified insulin could remove all the known symptoms of diabetes in laboratory animals and could greatly prolong their lives.

"When an excess was given alarming symptoms resulted such as convulsions and coma. These symptoms were due to a lowering of the percentage of sugar in the blood. It was found that by administering glucose (dextrose) the symptoms were immediately relieved.

JUSTIFIES VIVISECTION

"Insulin was employed in clinics with exactly similar results to those noted in animals, with the difference that the patient could tell how greatly his mental condition and general outlook became improved."

Professor MacLeod said the whole success of the research work had depended upon animal experimentation. He said no physician would have been justified in injecting insulin subcutaneously until after it had been shown it was perfectly harmless in animals.

He indicated that he was a firm adherent of the belief that medical science cannot progress without the vivisection of animals.

The discovery of insulin was made in 1921. Other Toronto men who have aided the experimental work, Professor MacLeod said, were Dr. J. Hepburn, Dr. Latchford and Messrs. E. C. Noble and McCormick.

BOASTS KILLING 8 MEN AT AGE OF THIRTEEN

Los Angeles, Cal., May 24—City and Federal officials are checking the story told by Joe Buckley Lourie, twenty-eight years old, that when he was thirteen years old, in April, 1908, he killed eight revenue officers in a moonshine fight in the mountains of Kentucky.

Lourie, who said he formally lived at Kirb Knobs, Ky., is held on a charge of beating his railroad fare. At the jail he told the following story:

"My father and my brother, Art, ran a moonshine still. The revenue agents were always trying to find it. One day, back in April, 1908, father and Art left my brother Charlie and me on guard and went away. The last thing my father said was 'Joe, if you see any revenue agents, shoot on sight and shoot to kill.'

"Charlie and I hung around the still, keeping close watch and pretty soon we heard shooting—thirty or forty shots, on the other side of the hill. We hid in the bushes and in a few minutes we saw the revenue agents coming down the hill. They were carrying two bodies and when they got close to us, we could see they were father and Art.

"We let the agents get past us and then we started shooting. I fired thirteen shots altogether, and Charlie fired seven, and we killed eight of them altogether. Then we skinned out."

Lourie said he and his brother traveled all over the world.

KILLED IN ROW OVER MARRIED WOMAN

Lawrence, May 24.—A score of passers-by saw Nelson Boomhower stabbed to death in a row over a married woman on Appleton street, where he had been superintending the wrecking of old City Hall.

Joseph Messino, friend of the woman's husband, was arrested for the murder and confessed, the police declare. James Walton, the husband, who accompanied Messino, is held as a material witness and a possible accessory.

Nelson Boomhower

ACCUSED BY HUSBAND.

Boomhower, a contracting foreman and twenty-seven years old, had been accused of taking Mrs. Walton to his summer camp in Pelham, N. H., with Mrs. Boomhower and a party against Walton's wishes. His alleged slayer, Messino, is twenty-two years old, and lives at No. 108 Garden street. Walton is also twenty-two and lives in Alston street.

Walton told the police that immediately previous to the stabbing he and Messino approached Boomhower and demanded that the latter bring back Mrs. Walton.

KNIFED IN BACK.

Boomhower did not heed the demand and was about to turn away when, Walton said, Messino addressed him threateningly:

"Boomhower, you bring her back pretty quick."

At this, Walton said, Boomhower became angry and attacked Messino. In the scuffle which followed, the police say, Messino drew a long knife and thrust it into the foreman's back several times.

After a two-hour search by the police, Messino was picked up in a pool room on Essex street by Inspector Michael J. Byron.

ROBERT P. PARRY.

TWO ATTEMPTS MADE TO ROB ENGAGED PAIR

Robert P. Parry of the foreign department of the Old Colony Trust Company will marry Miss Evelyn L. Henry, once a fellow employe, on June 2, culminating a four year romance that has been full of thrills and unusual experiences.

When the couple first contemplated marriage, they began to furnish their future home. A sneak thief forced an entrance and was about to make away with valuables when he was discovered by neighbors.

On another occasion, a thief, thought to be the same man, attempted to enter the home of the bride-to-be's parents. A Scotch terrier put the culprit to flight.

Police on the beat are now paying especial attention to the home where the Parrys will live.

The wedding will be held in the Unitarian Church in Roslindale. After a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple will start on a honeymoon trip to New York.

Miss Henry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie H. Henry, No. 4 Brexly road, Roslindale. Parry resides at No. 101 Geneva avenue, Dorchester.

CAPT. COOK IN COURT FOR SPEEDING

Captain John A. Cook, former whaler and oil promoter, whose marital acrobats aroused indignation on Cape Cod a year ago, is in the limelight again.

Capt. Cook, who divorced the wife who had lived with him forty-five years, and married a Wareham woman, was in Newton District Court today charged with speeding in his automobile. He was fined $10.

Last Summer residents of the Cape were amazed to learn that Captain Cook had written his wife, Mrs. Viola D. Cook, of Provincetown, that he had obtained a divorce.

Mrs. Cook, who was in ill health, as a result of accompanying her husband on whaling trips in the North Seas, immediately retained a lawyer. It was learned that the former whaling captain had married Mrs. Ethel M. Sparks, widow of a naval officer, and the couple had established a home at No. 575 Chestnut street, Waban.

It was then that legal proceedings were instituted by the first Mrs. Cook, to prove the divorce illegal, and also to recover $100,000 from Mrs. Cook No. 2 for alleged alienation of affections.

Last November the divorced wife died at her Provincetown home, before the suits went to trial.

Athens, May 24—Premier Gonatas, announcing today the Greek delegation at Lausanne had been ordered to leave in the event the Conference declares in favor of indemnity for Turkey, added that decision on the question must be made by Saturday of this week.

The Greek Premier denies this country is sending any reinforcements to the Maritza River—the Greco-Turkish boundary in Thrace.

There is fear that Bulgaria, Jugo-Slavia and Russia may be dragged in if a clash occurs between Greece and Turkey.

BRYAN FORCES VOTE REBUKE TO LIBERAL

Indianapolis, May 24.—William Jennings Bryan, assisted by two Philadelphia ministers, the Rev. A. Gordon Mac Lennan and the Rev. Clarence E. McCartney, fundamentalists, who are opposed to the liberalism of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, forced through the Presbyterian general assembly here a resolution directing the New York Presbytery to require the preaching in the First Church of New York city to conform to Presbyterian doctrine.

The conservatives won the fight by a majority of eighty out of 749 votes polled. The committee on bills and overtures in its report rejected the overture in its report rejected Presbytery denouncing doctrines preached by Dr. Fosdick, who questions the virgin birth of Christ and other Bible teachings.

Advices from the Southern Presbyterian Church in general assembly at Montreat, N. C., report that body "does not feel this is the time to reopen the question of organization."

FOOD QUERY DEPARTMENT

YOUR FOOD PURCHASING DIFFICULTIES SOLVED

— A THURSDAY FEATURE —

Are you at a loss as to where you can secure some particular brand or kind of foodstuffs? If so, write the Boston American Food Query Editor. We will answer your inquiry in these columns as quickly as possible.

Food Query Editor:

I have read in the papers and have also noticed signs in the Faneuil Hall Market saying they were going to close on Saturday at 6 p. m. during the months of June, July and August. Now, I have a large family, and it costs a lot to feed them. My husband does not arrive home with his week's pay until after 6 p. m., so you can see that it is impossible for me to do my marketing before 7 or 8 o'clock. What I am trying to get at is whether all the markets around Faneuil Hall are going to close at 6 o'clock. The market place, I think, is the proper place for one to buy their food, especially when it is convenient for one, such as it is for me.

MRS. J. L. SULLIVAN.

Charlestown, Mass.

For the convenience of yourself and others like you, the following markets and stores in the market district will remain open until 10 p. m. on Saturday nights during the Summer: Arthur E. Dorr, Workman, E. E. Grow, Quincy, Interstate Commission Company, Spinney & Hatch, Inc., A. H Hatch, and many others.

Food Query Editor:

I have heard of a flavoring extract by the name of Virginia Dare as being very powerful, pure and delicious. Could you tell me where I can buy this brand of extract? Do you know anything about this extract and where I can buy it?

MRS. L. ROY.

School St., Watertown, Mass.

The Virginia Dare flavoring extracts, put up by Garrett & Co., Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y., we understand is a very high-class piece of goods, and you can purchase same at John Gilbert, Jr., Company, No. 426 Boylston street, Boston.

Food Query Editor:

I would like to know whether I can buy Russian Caravan tea in tins put up by Ridgeway's. I can buy their Silver and Gold label and also Ridgeway's "Her Majesty's" blend, but I prefer the Russian Caravan. So if you can help me out on this I would appreciate it very much.

MRS. M. JONES.

Walnut St., Somerville, Mass.

You can secure any of the various label and brand Ridgeway's teas at the Cobb, Bates & Yerxa stores. These people carry a complete line of these goods.

Food Query Editor:

Last year I purchased some wonderful beets and tomatoes put up in glass jars. They were really very delicious. It was just like eating fresh vegetables. The name on the jar was Lily of the Valley, and I bought them in a store near the market but not in the market. Could you help me out by telling me where this brand can be secured? MRS. FRANK DUNN.

Dorchester, Mass.

Lily of the Valley selected tomatoes and beets, in glass, put up by the New York Canner, Inc., of Rochester, N. Y., can be secured at either H. L. Morrill & Co., No. 11 Merchants Row, or H. Strater & Son, No. 74 Sudbury street, Boston.

Food Query Editor:

Have you ever heard of a Diamond W brand of molasses? It comes put up in a can about the size of a tomato can. I find this a cleaner and more convenient way to buy molasses and this brand is very fine. Please tell me through your column where Diamond W brand can be bought.

MRS. F. STRANGE.

Jefferson St., Newton, Mass.

The W. Wirt Wickes & Son, No. 10 Gouverneur Lane, New York, put up the Diamond W brand of molasses in cans such as you describe. The contents of same, two pounds and five ounces. You can secure this molasses at any of the Mohican Stores.

Food Query Editor:

Please tell me where I can purchase London mixture breakfast tea. A friend of mine spoke very highly of this tea and I thought I would like to try some. Can you tell me if it is of the Orange Pekoe variety, as I dislike Oolong tea very much. Thanking you in advance, I am,

MRS. A. H. BEST.

Saugus, Mass.

London mixture of tea is a blend of Ceylon, Orange Pekoe and China teas. You can purchase same at any of the S. S. Pierce stores.

STATE PROBES WINCHESTER TRAIN WRECK

Inspector C. F. Montgomery of the railroad division of the State Department of Public Utilities went to Winchester today to investigate the derailment of the New Hampshire express train, which resulted in injuries to fifty passengers.

C. T. Thompson

A preliminary investigation by Street Railway Inspector Philip Scott of the department, who was aboard the train following the express, said it appeared that a broken rod had worked loose under the engine tender and caught in a switch, throwing the switch and causing the derailment.

Members of the section crew union said they were of the opinion that a spreading rail caused the wreck of the express. The section men have been on strike since April 1, demanding 40 cents an hour instead of the prevailing 34 cents an hour wage. The tracks, the union men say, have been inspected only now and then by section men from Lowell.

Among the wreck victims was C. T. Thompson of Grove street, Wilmington. He was knocked unconscious when he was hurled across the aisle of the second smoker.

MUSSOLINI FLIES TO FASCISTI COUNCIL

Rome, May 24.—Premier Mussolini left by aeroplane for Udine where he will meet with the Fascisti Council. From there he will fly to Carsi to attend the celebration of the entry of Italy in the World War. Mussolini has ordered the expulsion from the ranks of Fascismo Padovani, commandant of the Naples Fascisti, for refusing to obey orders to merge with the Nationalist party as has been done throughout Italy. Padovani considered himself second only to Mussolini.

BOSTON RATE DELEGATES SEE HARDING

Universal Service.

Washington, May 24. — Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and a delegation of seventy New England business men attending the closing session of the Boston freight differential case before the Interstate Commerce Commission called on President Harding at the White House.

Lodge presented the delegates, who shook hands with the President and wished him well. Lodge sat with the delegation at the hearings.

The commission will render its decision in the Fall, it is understood.

Henry W. Bikle, representing the railroads serving Philadelphia, contended that rates changes advocated by Boston would involve violation of the Constitution of the United States in that the port of one State would be given preference over the ports of other States, and any change would divert a great deal of grain trade to Canada.

He charged that New York and Boston were making common cause against Baltimore and Philadelphia, but that their economic plan was all wrong.

HARVARD HEAD ATTACKS HARDING'S LEAGUE STAND

Washington, May 24.—President Lowell of Harvard, who spoke before the League of Nations Non-Partisan Association, declared President Harding should not have declared himself absolutely opposed to entering the league. "Perhaps he only means he declared himself against entering the league without substantial changes," said President Lowell, adding that that was what the group of thirty-one prominent Republicans who supported Mr. Harding during that campaign "certainly understood him to mean."

COURT HELD IN SICK-ROOM, INVALID CONVICTS SLAYER

Philadelphia, May 24. — After a temporary court session in the bedroom of a woman invalid, Joseph Trinkle was found guilty of first degree murder in the shooting of John C. Emgable, a contractor, attempting to protect his payroll from four bandits. Mrs. Margaret Connaughton, who had witnessed the shooting identified Trinkle as the slayer.

6-YEAR SEARCH FOR WIFE ENDS AT GRAVE

Lawrence, May 24.—A search of six years has ended at the grave. Word has been received by Theodore Vandoorne, mill worker of No. 3 Washington way, that his wife, Louise, who left the family home in this city following a dispute between where she was living in seclusion them, is dead at Skowhegan, Me., while police officials secured New England for her. Friends, who for six years have denied her presence in their midst, have at last told the truth.

MEDIUM GAVE MANVILLE PHILOSOPHY, NOT 'TIPS'

ASBESTOS KING SUED ON NOTE

Spiritist Declares She Never Attempted to Give Him Advice on Business Future

Universal Service.

New York, May 24 (U. S.)—The spirits never play the stock market nor do they from their higher plane give tips for the guidance of oil stock buyers of earth, Miss Beulah Thompson, spirit medium, testified in the suit of Dr. Alonzo E. Austin against Charles B. Manville, the "asbestos king."

Miss Thompson was called to tell what she knew of a deal whereby Dr. Austin claimed Manville had given him a note for $21,000 in a stock deal, and had failed to honor the note. Manville denied the note was valid.

Miss Thompson denied the assertions of Manville that she knew methods of "black art." She also said she had never given Manville "tips" on the market, whether from the spirits or other sources.

QUIZZED ON SPIRITS.

To a question as to whether she had ever given financial tips to Charles M. Schwab, steel baron, or Mr. Tiffany, the jewel millionaire, she replied that she had never met the gentlemen.

Asked why Manville had visited her drawing rooms, she said:

"He came to learn more of our philosophy. I did not know he came for advice, and I did not pretend to give him any. I have not powers to see into the future to give business advice."

"Have you powers to commune with the spirits of the dead?" she was asked.

"I believe we can receive inspiration from those who have passed away," she replied.

"Did Mr. Manville, as he testified, pay you $10 when he left?"

"He paid nothing. My teachings are for the benefit of humanity."

CLEARS MRS. HAYES.

Dr. Austin, his wife and his sister-in-law, Miss C. C. Hall, testified that the family held 14,000 shares of the Pennsylvania and Kentucky Oil and Gasoline Refining Company's stock. Each one of the witnesses was certain beyond doubt that Manville was "our president," as the smiling little Miss Hall described him. But Manville stoutly denied that he had ever held the office or the title.

Dr. Austin said he had never relied upon the statements of Mrs. Cora Stetson Butler in making investments, nor was Mrs. Myrtle B. Hayes, now under indictment on a charge of forging the name of Schwab to a note for $25,000, involved in his transactions.

To Be June Bride

Miss Helen H. Bennett

Miss Helen Howa Bennett, younger daughter of Mr. Stephen Howa Bennett, of Boston, will be married to Mr. Bulkeley Livermore Wells of New York, son of Mrs. Grace Livermore Wells, on June 2 in the Protestant Episcopal Church at Castleton Forest, Green Spring Valley, Md. The bride will have for her attendant Mrs. Thomas E. Cottman as matron of honor; Mrs. Amory S. Carhart, Mrs. Morgan E. La Montagne, Miss Phyllis Batcheller and Mrs. Lothrop M. Wild, the latter a sister of the bridegroom, all of New York. Thomas Wells will serve as his brother's best man.

CABINET PLACE ACCEPTED BY LORD CECIL

London, May 24 (AP). — Although Lord Robert Cecil's reported appointment as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster has not been confirmed, the Morning Post's announcement that he has accepted the office seems in accordance with the probabilities.

Mr. Bonar Law did not appoint a separate Chancellor for the duchy, but the office, frequently given to an experienced parliamentarian whose debating power is needed by the Government, was held temporarily by Lord Salisbury, together with the presidency of the council.

Referring to Lord Cecil's expected entry into the Cabinet, the Daily Telegraph says it is understood he will combine his governmental position with representation on the council of the League of Nations.

Swallow Pounces on Feathers of Woman's Hat

Westfield, May 24.—A chimney swallow appropriated a part of the feather trimmings on the hat of Mrs. W. C. Pratt of Franklin street, in Montgomery. A high wind blew the feathers from Mrs. Pratt's hat and the swallow, flying low, pounced and carried them into the chimney for its nest.

ONE DEAD, MANY HURT, AT FIRES IN MONTREAL

Montreal, May 24.—Two disastrous fires which swept different sections of this city resulted in one death and a big property loss.

In the city's East End, one man lost his life, six others, two of them firemen, were injured, and many families were made homeless when flames destroyed fifteen dwellings and a new saw mill, with estimated damage of $300,000.

An earlier fire, caused by an explosion of undetermined origin, destroyed the shops of the Montreal Harbor Commission on MacKay Pier.

U. S. GUNS COVER RUM FLEET OFF VIRGINIA

Norfolk, Va., May 24.—A real sea fight off the Virginia Capes is imminent.

If the battle occurs it will be between a fleet of rum laden ships and vessels of the coast guard service.

The rum fleet now is being covered by the guns of coast guard cutters which are tendering to prevent the landing of whiskey cargoes anywhere along the Atlantic coast, or on Chesapeake Bay shores.

All night the rum runners and coast guard cutters played a game of hide and seek, the cutters running up and down the coast to keep the "enemy" beyond the three-mile limit.

Orders to fire if an attempt is made to unload whiskey have been issued. Small boats will be fired on if they approach the rum fleet and coast guardsmen have orders to stop any one seen leaving the latter.

The rum ships, members of the fleet recently off New York are believed to have a cargo of liquor worth $500,000.

Geneva, May 24 (AP)—The fifth session of the Opium Commission opened today at League of Nation headquarters here with nine countries represented, including the United States, whose delegates are Representative Stephen V. Porter, of Pennsylvania, Right Rev. C. H. Brent, and Dr. Robert Bliss, with Edwin L. Neville, of the State Department, as expert.

The Swiss press of all shades of opinion is criticizing its government's refusal to ratify.

New York, May 24.—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., thirteen-year-old son of the famous screen actor, has signed a three-year contract with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation at a salary of $1,000 a week, it was announced today.

Work would be started at once on his first picture, it was said, in which he would be starred.

His mother, Mrs. James Evans, Jr., stated the contract stipulated that his picture work was not to interfere with his education and that during his work he would be privately tutored for college later.

Young Douglas is headed now for Princeton, Mrs. Evans said.

BANDITS CHASE RETREATING TROOPS

Tientsin, May 24 (A. P.)—The Chinese government troops which had surrounded the Suchow train bandits end their foreign captives in the Paotzuku mountain stronghold have fallen back six miles, according to advices received today from Lincheng. The brigands' outposts are following the troops as they retire.

The bandits, apparently puzzled by the recent cessation of negotiations, sent messengers to the relief workers at Lincheng demanding that newspapers be sent up to them. The newspapers were sent but the relief party carefully deleted all matter pertaining to the kidnaping.

In reply to a message from his family in San Francisco, transmitted to him through the Associated Press, Major Roland W. Pinger, one of the captives, sent out the following:

"I am with Allen and Solomon (Major Robert A. Allen and Lee Solomon), confined on the summit of Paotsuku. Am perfectly healthy, but hope for an early release. Thanks for the kind message."

Major Pinger added that he was writing further details to the Associated Press.

Won Release by Gift to Bandit Chief's Son

Peking, May 24 (AP)—M. O. Berube, one of the captives of the Suchow train bandits, who brought the ultimatum of the brigands to the Chinese government, today told how he won his release.

Berube, when taken to the stronghold with the other prisoners, was attracted by a child, son of the chief, and thinking to please the youngster, commissioned a messenger to buy a watch for him. He gave the messenger $10 and the purchase was made at Tsaochwang.

This so pleased the chief that he chose Berube when he needed a messenger to carry the outlaw's terms to Peking.

Boston Society to Have Colony in Maine, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

THOUGH the North Shore is, of course, the bright particular region for the fashionables who go a-Summering, there will be quite a smart little colony at York Harbor, Maine, this season.

The Francis H. Appletons Jr. of Marlboro street will be there, along with such other well-known folk as the William E. Dexters of Beacon street, Mrs. Forbes Freeman and Mrs. John S. Lindsay. Also planning to spend the hot months in this harbor of the Pine Tree State are Mrs. Frank Bemis and Miss Alice Sargent who have only recently returned from a visit to Hot Springs.

Speaking of York Harbor—it was there that popular Helen Bennett, youngest daughter of Stephen Howe Bennett, spent several of her Summers, much of her time there being devoted to golf. Just at present, Miss Bennett is furnishing out end of chatty around the tea-cups, for on June 2 she becomes the bride of Bulkeley Livermore Wells. Those who attend the Vincent Club shows will not soon forget the clever way in which the future Mrs. Wells played the role of the "swaggerest" leading man in several performances.

FRANCIS M. WELD, formerly of Boston and now of New York, has been staying for a while at the Red Lion Inn in Stockbridge.

I HEAR that Mr. and Mrs. A. Ronald Tree, prominent members of the New York colony along the North Shore, have sailed for abroad on board the Aquitania. They will visit relatives in England, including Lord and Lady Beatty and Lord and Lady Astor.

A fellow-passenger of the Trees was Mrs. Muriel Wiltbrop Boardman, as she now calls herself since her separation from that prominent columnist, Richard DeBlois Boardman of Newbury street and member of the Harvard '90 class.

Mrs. Boardman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Egerton L. Winthrop of New York, has, I understand, become intensely interested in promoting the art of American painters, and has recently made several sales. She is also an active member of the Art Patrons of America, a national organization made up primarily of amateur patrons who are "strong" for the art of their own country.

THAT bright young person, Miss Dorothy Batchelder, will return some time this month from a trip abroad with her mother, Mrs. George L. Batchelder (Louise Lawrence), and her two younger sisters, Eleanor and Louise. Dorothy Batchelder is a tall brunette, with lovely coloring and large brown eyes, and is usually more animated than her two sisters. The youngest, Louise Batchelder, was one of the debbies of the past season. Eleanor, by the way, will be one of the bridesmaids at the marriage of Miss "Kat" Greeley to Jonathan Brown 3rd, the ceremonial scheduled for the ninth of June.

300 'GOLD STAR MOTHERS' TO BE AT EXERCISES

Over 300 "Gold Star Mothers" will attend the annual Memorial Day services to be observed Sunday at Fenway Park under the auspices of the Suffolk County Councils of the Spanish-American War Veteran Encampments and American Legion Posts.

To accomodate the large number of parents whose boys died in service, the committee has arranged the first ten rows in sections E and O, which are to be reserved for those who have lost their boys in the Spanish-American and World War.

As the demand for general admission tickets has exceeded 15,000, arrangements have been made for 10,000 extra tickets which will be distributed to the various Spanish War and Legion Posts in the county today.

The exercises to begin at 3 p. m., from present indications will attract over 20,000 people.

FALL RIVER MERCHANT DIES BY HANGING

Fall River, May 24.—Samuel Plesit, manager of the National Credit Company, ended his life by hanging in his office in the Edwards building. His body was discovered by an employe. Plesit was a veteran of the World War. He served seventeen months overseas with Company H, 316th Infantry. He was gassed and lost one of his arms in the war. Plesit's father and two brothers were killed during the war in a pogrom near Kiev in Ukraine. Another brother was killed in another section of Russia. One of his brothers is a surgeon in Siberia.

U. S. VESSEL SCARES OFF RUM-RUNNERS

Norfolk, Va., May 24.—The steam yacht Istar of the rum fleet disappeared from her position off the Virginia Capes after the government tug Mascoutin, with guns mounted for any emergency, had moved within hailing distance. The British schooner Mary Beatrice, said to be liquor-laden from Nassau, anchored nearby, but reports today indicated that she was heading out. The steamer Cartonia listed by government agents as a rum runner, also has disappeared.

2 WIVES MEET AT FUNERAL OF HUSBAND

Indianapolis, May 24.—Two wives, each with a son, met each aware of the other's presence and identity, assisted at the funeral service and burial of Joseph T. Davis, a contractor, but they did not speak to one another. They are Mrs. Dorothy Davis, his first wife, forty-seven years old, and Mrs. Mabel Davis, his second, twenty-six years old.

When questioned, Mrs. Mabel Davis admitted that she was aware of the fact that her husband had another wife, but she did not take legal action against him because she did not "like the thought of his getting into trouble."

"Furthermore," she declared, "the matter of his having another wife concerns me alone, and if I felt that I did not want to sue for a divorce that's my trouble."

"I've known all along that something had been horribly bothering Joe, because he had begun to abuse me lately. However, it's all over now, and I hold nothing against him."

Although the two women both live in Indianapolis, they had never met until the funeral. Both women sought to obtain the body for burial, but the funeral plans of the second wife, with whom Davis had lived for seven years, were carried out.

CHARGE INSANITY IN BOURNE WILL

New York, May 24.—Two witnesses, called by Mrs. Helen Merriman, Providence, who is contesting the will of her late aunt, Miss Emily Howland Bourne, charging another niece, Mrs. Emily B. Michler, Greenwich, Conn., got the bulk of the million dollar estate by undue influence, testified that Miss Bourne's mother was insane in 1894, when she lived in New Bedford.

Richard Cahoon, the contestant's counsel, brought out evidence to show there was a mental strain in the Bourne family that might have been inherited by the daughter. The two witnesses, Mrs. Anna Chadwick, New Bedford, Mass., and Mary L. Thompson, Cambridge, Mass., told how Miss Bourne's mother lived in a room in her New Bedford mansion with windows barred and always dressed in white. Visitors had to dress similarly, they said.

Lucius Beers, legal adviser to Miss Bourne, who was the daughter of Jonathan Bourne, pioneer Fall River whaler, again related how Miss Bourne had told him that her niece, Mrs. Michler, had offered an eye if it was possible to transplant it to save her aunt's eyesight.

A watchman at the hotel where Miss Bourne lived told how she abhored the smell of paint and cigar smoke and ordered him one morning to make the hotel help stop smoking "vile cigars." She also "used profane language," he said.

ANTI-FLOGGING BILL IN FLORIDA SIGNED

Tallahassee, Fla., May 24.—Governor Hardee has signed a bill outlawing the whipping of convicts in this State. Instructions were immediately issued to convict wardens and guards.

NEW INCOME LEVY PLANNED TO RECOUP STATE'S LOSS

An additional tax of 10 per cent. of the total income tax paid by each taxpayer in this State upon each person or corporation is provided for in a bill drawn up by the Senate committee on ways and means and taxation. This revenue would be used to repay to national banks the taxes which, according to a decision of the Supreme Court, have been illegally assessed upon them. The bill also provides for the payment by national banks in the future of 12½ per cent. of their net incomes. The total returns from the additional tax of 10 per cent. on incomes will be $2,923,330.60. It is estimated.

WIFE AND PRAYER ARE HIS COUNSEL, BRYAN SAYS

Los Angeles, May 24.—William J. Bryan never makes a decision of importance without first consulting his wife. After he has heard her views and they have agreed upon what is right, the Commoner then invokes Divine guidance and maps out his course in what he believes has been revealed to him as the proper course. After that nothing can swerve him, Mr. Bryan revealed this to Thomas G. Patten, former Congressman and former postmaster of New York City, now Will Hays' representative at Hollywood.

Juno's Month

From Roman times June has been considered a lucky month for brides. For, as Ovid tells us, June was named after Juno, the wife of the Roman god Jupiter. She was the protectress and guardian of all women, to whom they offered prayers before all the important events of their lives.

For the June bride of 1923 we have many gift suggestions.

Silver of all descriptions will be found on our second floor. Single pieces of flat ware to whole chests—coffee services, tea sets, trays, platters, candlesticks, and vases are among the silver most often chosen.

Electric lamps are more beautiful than ever. We are showing shapes and colors to suit every type of home. These are on the fourth floor. Clocks, new bronzes, place plates, glassware, vases, are among the possible gifts to be seen on our first floor.

The articles mentioned but hint at the many things from which you may choose if you will come in. If you have definite ideas, we shall be pleased to interpret them—or, if you wish, we shall be glad to suggest.

BANKER SUES SUCCESSOR AS LOVE THIEF

Enosburg Falls, Vt., May 24.—A suit for $50,000 for the alienation of the affections of his wife has been filed by Walter Phelps, former president of the First National Bank, against E. S. Greenwood, his successor as the bank head.

Walter Phelps

Greenwood was elected president by the directors shortly after Phelps left here last October 19, the same day Mrs. George Wood, wife of a truckman, disappeared.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Phelps obtained a divorce on grounds of intolerable severity. She also divorced her first husband, M. L. Hubbell of West Enosburg.

Phelps is said to have converted virtually all his holdings into cash before leaving here so mysteriously last Fall, the same day Mrs. Wood disappeared. She returned a few days ago just before Mr. Phelps returned to file his alienation suit.

Greenwood declares he will fight the case, and terms it "graft."

Wherever there's a road

A complete line of Autocar trucks—new, rebuilt and reconditioned

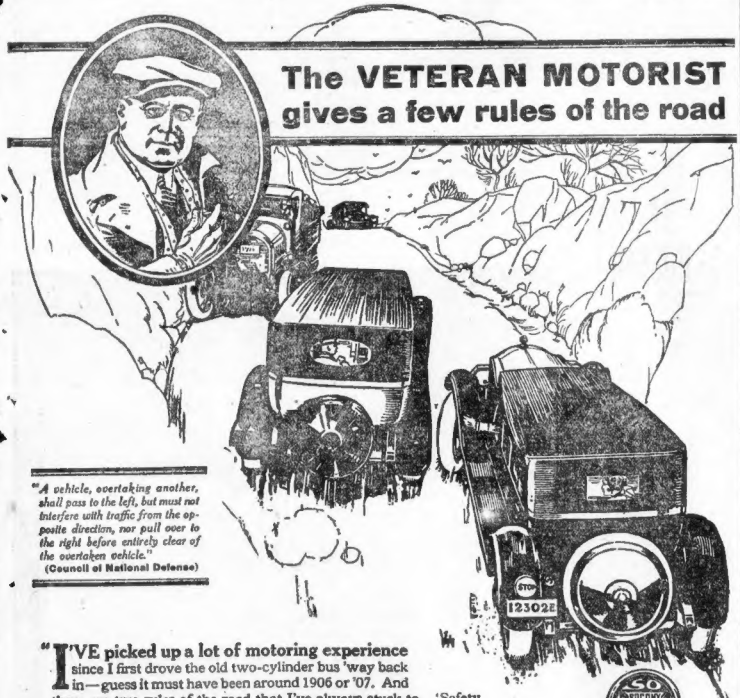
The VETERAN MOTORIST gives a few rules of the road



"A vehicle, overtaking another, shall pass to the left, but must not interfere with traffic from the opposite direction, nor pull over to the right before entirely clear of the overtaken vehicle."
(Council of National Defense)

"I'VE picked up a lot of motoring experience since I first drove the old two-cylinder bus 'way back in—guess it must have been around 1906 or '07. And there are two rules of the road that I've always stuck to. 'Safety first' is one of them, and 'consideration for the other fellow' is the second.

"I really believe that it's because I have stuck to them that I haven't had a single smash-up. (Three taps on wood, as I write this!) Just take the matter of passing a car. Simple enough—sure. And the driver that uses common sense and a little consideration never has any trouble. But this habit—and it's mostly a habit—of always trying to get ahead of the fellow in front of you is the cause of more close shaves and real accidents than any other one thing I know of.

"Make sure there's plenty of room ahead of the car you're going to pass. And remember—it's bad business to pass a car near the top of a hill, or on a curve. In fact, it's against the law in some States to pass another car on a curve."

WOLLASTON WOMEN'S CLUB DROPS BATHING BEACH PROBE

ABANDONS MOVE TO CLEAN UP

"We Did Our Share to Stop Improper Doings, but We're Through" ..

"We are a class of women who wouldn't lower ourselves to open the matter up again. We did our share to clean up the Wollaston Beach conditions and if our efforts weren't appreciated, well——"

This is the reply made by Mrs. Edward W. De Forest as president of the Wollaston Club on behalf of the members of the club to the Rev. William B. Ayres, who played the dramatic and sensational resolutions of the clubwomen with respect to alleged improper doings at Wollaston Beach.

TO LET MATTER DROP.

It was expected that the matter would be brought up at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs, which is now in session at the New Ocean House, Swampscott. After consultation with Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the State Federation, it was decided to let the matter drop.

"It is absolutely a violation of the rules to bring a local controversy before the delegation," Mrs. Poole told a Boston American reporter. "Such petty disturbances tend to make a convention unharmonious and, of course, that is never to be desired. Wollaston Women's Club will have to settle the matter for itself."

Mrs. De Forest of Wollaston added that "it is up to the Metropolitan police department to take action. With us it is closed for all time. We will forsake this part of our splendid work."

2,000 WOMEN PRESENT.

The convention numbers 2,000 women from all over the State, all interested in one great thing—the advancement of women!

The various committee chairmen urged the advancement of art and crafts, music and literature in their communities.

Among the prominent women present were: Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Brockton, president Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Frank F. Spaulding of Everett, clerk; Mrs. Herbert C. Miles of Haverhill, assistant clerk; Miss Agnes L. Dodge of Melrose Highlands, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Frederick S. Davis of Boston, treasurer; Mrs. Malcolm Bereot of Cambridge, budget chairman; Mrs. E. W. Gardner of Brockton, chairman of standing; Miss Alice F. Thiss of Lynn, press chairman; Miss Grace Morse of Boston, art department chairman; Mrs. George A. Webber, education; Mrs. Arthur H. Wenthworth, literature; Mrs. Alice G. Hall, Catholic of Cambridge, music chairman.

The various talks and reports on the departments on motherhood, public health, social and industrial conditions and women's service. The convention will close on Friday.

Salem, May 24.—Accompanied by a party of sixteen friends and relatives, Osborne White, son of Mrs. Macdonald E. White, No. 13 Washington Square, this city, left today for Honolulu, Hawaii, where he will marry Miss Aileen Dowsett.

After the wedding on June 9 at the home of the bride's parents in Honolulu, the couple will tour Hawaii, and return to Salem late in the Summer.

Mr. White's best man will be H. N. Williams, Jr., of Cambridge. Those who accompany Mr. White on the trip are: His mother, Mrs. Macdonald E. White; his uncle, Councilor William O. Williams Jr., Miss Honor Williams and Howard Elliot all of Cambridge.

WAR MEMORIAL ROW DIVIDES HARVARD MEN

Opposition of the corporation of Harvard University to the report of the war memorial committee of the Associated Harvard Clubs will be explained before the annual meeting of the Associated Clubs at Kansas City by President Lowell of Harvard, if the association wishes.

The Associated Clubs committee recommended a chapel as being the best form of memorial to the university's war dead. The corporation has asked that the memorial take the form of dormitories as both utilitarian and commemorative.

With President Lowell will be seven men representing the corporation also prepared to discuss details of the two plans.

The Harvard Crimson, the university's daily newspaper, sides with the corporation in requesting that the proposed memorial take the form of dormitories. It is argued Appleton Chapel adequately provides for the institution's religious needs and that the building of a new chapel would necessitate discarding the chapel now in use.

SERUM HAILED SURE CURE IN PNEUMONIA

New York, May 24.—Dr. Rufus I. Cole, medical director of the Rockefeller Institute, in an address before the New York State Medical Society here said that the results obtained by the Institute in the use of the anti-pneumococcus serum in treating lobar pneumonia show the vaccine to be effective if promptly administered.

He revealed for the first time that of 221 cases treated by the Institute since the perfected the serum in 1914, there have been only twenty-four deaths, or a mortality of ten per cent. Six of these deaths, he said, were complications resulting from pneumonia before the serum could be administered, hence the actual mortality should be placed at 7½ per cent, he said.

Dr. Simon Flexner, director of the Rockefeller Institute, told the meeting that the serum is now considered by leading physicians throughout the country to be effective if promptly administered.

Dr. James H. Ayer of Boston, discussing the treatment of meningitis, recommended the "tapping of the brain" for draining purposes in cases where there is an obstruction in the abdominal portion of the spine, the customary place for draining.

30,000 POUND SEA MONSTER CAPTURED

By Universal Service.

Norfolk, Va., May 24—Weighing 30,000 pounds and with 2,400 pounds of food in its stomach, an unnamed sea monster was brought to this port today on the steam yacht Tamiami. It was caught off the coast of Florida and it occupies practically all of the cargo space on the vessel.

It is forty feet long and twenty-three feet in girth. Its liver alone weighed 1,200 pounds. When it was caught it had swallowed an octopus weighing 400 pounds, a hammerhead weighing 1,500 pounds and 500 pounds of rock coral. It could have swallowed twenty Jonahs without the slightest pangs of indigestion.

It will be shipped to the Smithsonian Institute. It is said to be made that a man can easily walk into its yawning jaws by [illegible] holding his body.

Does Gum-Dipping Improve Cord Tires?

Certainly! Because it lengthens the life of the inner tire structure. That is why Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords are practically proof against blowouts.

The process of immersing the cords in a fluid of fine rubber insulates each individual thread—reduces friction and heat to a marked degree—makes a more active, more responsive, easier riding tire—and ends permanently a long list of tire troubles.

The satisfaction of greater mileage that accompanies each purchase of Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords is amply demonstrated by the tremendous recent increase in sales.

In the past six months the public has shown its appreciation of these quality tires—with a demand 194% above that of the same period last year.

Combined with double gum-dipping are other special processes—air-bag cure—rubber blending and tempering—having definite and marked results in mileage.

Equip all four wheels of your car with Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords and Firestone Steam-Welded Tubes. Learn the meaning of MILEAGE as developed by Firestone.

ALEXANDRA'S TO FIGHT DIVORCE

Miss Carlisle, "Misunderstood Wife" of "The Fool," Contests Suit of Husband

Alexandra Carlisle, actress wife of Dr. Albert Pfeiffer of the State Health Department, will contest the divorce action brought against her by her husband.

Alexandra Carlisle

"I shall fight for the right to have my little daughter with me," she said on her way to the Selwyn Theatre, where she plays the role of the misunderstood wife in "The Fool."

"Since this action has been forced upon me, I shall accept the challenge and assert my rights as a mother. I refuse to give her up.

"I don't understand my husband's charges. I don't know what he means. I don't know just how to meet them, but I intend to contest the divorce for my little girl's sake," she declared.

Dr. Pfeiffer charges desertion in 1920, when he maintained a home for Miss Carlisle in the Bellcot Cumbridge, No. 483 Beacon street. They were married in London in 1912, when Miss Carlyle was playing there in "Everywoman."

Both Miss Carlisle and Dr. Pfeiffer recently denied rumors that a divorce was imminent.

ALEXANDRA'S FIREPROOF COAL

Somerville Partners Appeal $500 Sentences in Bag Fuel Fraud

John, Jacob and Korker Adamian, proprietors of the Adams Coal Company of Beacon street, Somerville, who were found guilty by a jury on two indictments charging fraudulent sale of coal and adulterating coal, were fined $500 each by Judge Hammond in the Middlesex Superior Court.

On exceptions filed by their counsel, John F. Hurley, the three men were allowed to appeal their fines to the Supreme Court.

FOUND GUILTY.

They were found guilty by a jury recently on two indictments of twenty-six counts each. Judge Hammond set aside the twenty-six counts charging fraudulent sale of coal and imposed fines of $20 each on each of the twenty-five counts charging adulterating of the coal.

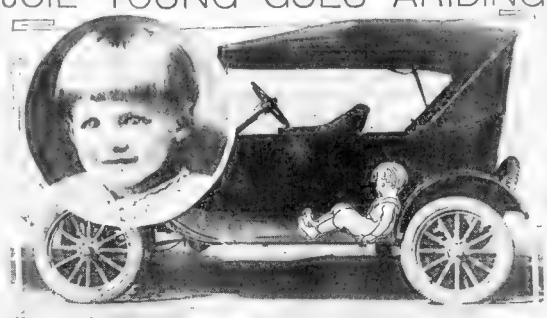
Because of the failure of the complainant in one of the counts charging adulterating of coal to appear in court, the dealers were granted a new trial on the latter count.

ROCKS AND SHALE.

The men were alleged to have mixed their product with rocks and shale and to have sold it in bags during the recent coal shortage.

District Attorney Arthur K. Read has asked that jail sentences be imposed, but Judge Hammond stated that the law did not call for jail sentences. Attorney Hurley for the defendants asked that the charges [illegible] the case of the former clean records of his clients

JOIE YOUNG GOES ARIDING ROLLS OFF IN HIS SLEEP



HOW THE BOY WAS CARRIED OFF

Joie Young, Medford three-year-old, perches on the running board of a doctor's auto occasionally. The last time he did it the doctor started off, not knowing the boy was there. Joie fell asleep and tumbled off later in Somerville after the car had driven several miles.

Three-Year-Old Medford Boy Goes Several Miles Before He Is Discovered

When little Joie Young, aged three, wants to go riding he waits until Dr. Charles A. Walker of Somerville comes to call at the Young home, at No. 12 Edwards street, Medford.

Then while Dr. Walker is inside he perches himself on the running board and waits there.

Medford's streets are notoriously rough, so it is said that taxi drivers in adjoining communities charge extra prices for going into the city that made New England rum famous.

But Joie doesn't care.

He leans back against the rear mudguard and laughs with delight as Dr. Walker's car bumps the bumps, clinging tenaciously to his perch.

On his latest adventure Joie was carried around Medford and Somerville for several miles before he went to sleep and rolled off the running board to the ground in the middle of Freemont street, Somerville.

Patrolman Joe Dwyer saw him and shouted to Dr. Walker, who stopped, picked the boy up and rushed him to the [illegible] hospital.

A slight cut on the cheek, Joie's only injury, was dressed and he rode back home on the seat beside Dr. Walker.

Hereafter when the doctor calls at the Young home he will carefully look at the running boards and underneath the hood before driving away.

CHARGES NEGRO SLEW WIFE FOR $40,000 GEMS

Valparaiso, Ind., May 24.—The whereabouts of $40,000 worth of jewels and other valuables belonging to Mrs. Nettie Diamond, which disappeared at the time of her death, is expected to play an important part in the trial here of Harry Diamond, the woman's husband, who is charged with her slaying.

At [illegible] the defence say they will present evidence linking William [illegible], negro chauffeur, with the crime, and showing as the motive the theft of the valuables.

The State, which charges that Diamond, and not Armstrong, shot and killed the woman also alleges that [illegible] motive for the act was the defendant's desire to possess the valuables.

Harry Diamond, twenty-four years old, lived in Gary, Ind. His wealthy wife, Mrs. Nettie Diamond, was forty-two.

Mrs. Diamond, before her death in a Gary hospital, February 15th last, police say, made a statement charging her husband with the shooting while they were riding in the auto mobile with Armstrong, a chauffeur, near 22nd Chicago, on the previous day. Diamonds [illegible] according to the police was that the negro driver shot Mrs. Diamond.

NEW SOCIALIST BANS JEWS

Hamburg, May 24 (AP)—The Second and Second And One Half Socialists Internationals are no more and in their places has been created a consolidated organization known as the "Socialist Workers' International." Point two notes that the organization is endeavoring completely to unify the Socialist Workers' movements.

The third point states the International is practically operative only in so far as its decisions are binding on all its parts adding: "Such decisions of the International organization therefore means [illegible] restriction of the freedom of parties in the individual lands."

Point four specifies that the organization must serve as an instrument during the war as well as peace.

The identity of the married couple who are caring for the seven-year-old girl is carefully shielded.

The mother, who has come here from her home in Minneapolis, was invited by Thomas D. Lavelle, attorney for the father, to see the child. Fearing that a visit to her daughter would injure her attempts to obtain full custody in court, Mrs. Boynton declined the invitation. She did not see her husband.

"Scurrilous and unwarranted attacks," were the terms applied by Clifford C. Boynton, the father, to charges filed in Supreme Court by his wife that he imprisoned the child in a Commonwealth avenue apartment and that he engaged in "high jinks with chorus girls."

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus, filed by Mrs. Boynton, who seeks the custody of the daughter, Katherine Anne Boynton, a cripple, is scheduled for a hearing in Superior Court on Tuesday.

"I shall be there personally to defend myself and to assert my right to have the custody of my child," said the husband.

New York, May 24.—While talking over the long distance telephone to his wife at Liberty, N. Y., Vincent W. McArdle, aged twenty-eight, drew a revolver and shot himself through the head. He died a few minutes later.

He then placed one arm around the girls neck and sent three bullets crashing into his own head. He died almost instantly.

A quarrel, according to little Lena Sparveri, eleven year-old sister of the dead girl, took place a few minutes before the shooting in the kitchen. Antonio accused his sweetheart of keeping company with another fellow, and then fired the fatal shots.

THERE'S another one, kids. "Charlie Ed," the baby elephant of the Sells Floto Circus, that comes to the lot next to Braves Field May 28th, which was printed in yesterday's Boston American, came back colored in so many diff'rent combinations that the Circus Editor is dizzy.

Why, he's selecting the best of the first batch and every kid that has his coloring picked gets a pair of free tickets to the circus—brain your young optics on today's picture.

It is a drawing of Jos Hodgini, riding marvel of the Sells Floto Circus. Joe's just as much at home on a bicycle as you and I are on terra firma. (Look true on, kids, it means earth.) The whizzer these days Joe uses as a base for his somersault is called Atlas. You remember the original Atlas? He had the world on his back. Al this Atlas has on his back is Joe Hodgini. On the program Joe is listed as head of the Josef Hodgini troupe of comedy equestrians. Just over from Belgium. He saw a lot of service with British troops during the great war, and, as a boy, he toured in England and America.

If you'd like to see Joe actually going through his stunts, color up today's picture, and send it in. Any sort of colors. Everybody's in. Nobody barred. Send as many of each subject ... you like. The ones selected as best by the Circus Editor get free circus tickets.

Address your entries to the Circus Editor, Boston American, No. 8 Summer street, Boston, Mass. Use this picture in the paper. Don't copy it.

Celebrated Maybes

By Jesse Wilkins

MAYBE the concert will be good for once, and I'll enjoy it. Anyway Mae likes it so I'll take a chance. They say that once in a while they have something a guy can listen at without falling asleep. Well, I'll take a chance. Gee whiz, I don't like to be takin' a gal to musical comedies and movies all the time when she likes a bit of the real stuff occasionally, so here goes. What? Seats in the parquet are what? Only six bucks each? . . . Listen, how do you get that way? . . . Hello, Irene, get off the wire. Central. What you, May? How's dad . . . Ma gal. Say, Irene, May, how about the movies tonight. Yah. Johnny Walker in "Gladys Gell on" . . . That's fine. I'll meet you, same place at eight. Bye, bye.

Maybe she can't cook, but shucks a gal can learn that like every thing else. Tain't as though a gal can't find a bunch of good books in the library all about cookin'. I remember Sis gettin' married and learnin' it all in six months or so, an' sewin' besides, an' leave it to her, she'll learn. I'll bet if she hadn't been cooped in an office all her life she'd know more about it this minute than the gas that wrote the cook books . . . What's 'at Joe? You married one of those kind? Huh. What? Been married six years an' the only holiday you remember is one Washington's birthday when you didn't have indigestion. Well, Joe, I don't like to say it, but I guess you married a dumbell. Now take Emma, an' she's just naturally bright. Pick up anything, no trouble at all. What? That's what? . . . That's what they all say? . . . Oh, dry up, you married birds is all pessimists.

Remember the Time—

By Jack Casey

YER was learnin' to ride a bicycle an' yer Pa would hold yer on the seat an' walk alongside of you as yer guided yerself. An' when he'd let yer go an' yer realized it, how you'd suddenly get tense as anything an' lookin' ahead yer an ash barrel an' that's yer was goin' to hit it. An' yer'd get nervous an' the sweat would pop out on yer brow an' yer'd concentrate to an I bitin, that an' barrel, but it was useless yer are to save yerself so yer don't bust away from it, but would bear right down on it an' SMASH bang into it an' over the bundle barrel in the gutter.

Yer bicycle went down the sewer an' yer was heart broken 'cause it was a good hummer. The first time yer went to the park with yer Ma and Pa an' saw a "Punch and Judy" show, an' saw a in the open air an' yer stood under the trees an' yer Pa held yer up to look over the heads of the crowd an' yer thought it was wonderful an' couldn't understand how little people like Punch and Judy could be so marvelous. Folks look at a baby an' when his Ma would say, "Who do you think he looks like?" they'd say, "Why, he's the dead spit of his Dad."

Yer Ma always stuffed receipted bills behind the old clock on the kitchen mantel an' went over them all at house cleanin' time to see that they was all paid. An' how dusty the back of the clock was an' how yer pendulum would bang sideways an' backwards when it was taken down. An' on the glass door of the clock was a beautiful country scene an' inside of the clock's face was the sun lookin' down on the scene. An' nights when yer was sick an' slept down stairs how mournful it sounded when just before yer Pa went to bed he'd wind the clock.

Yer had spellin' contests at school an' you was as lazy an' so indifferent to the sport of competition yer'd spell the first word yer was called on to spell wrong on purpose, so's yer could sit down an' play. An' how delightful every body felt when on Friday afternoon the teacher would say, "Now, if you will all be good today children at 3 o'clock I shall read to you."

REMEMBER?
I'LL SAY YER DO.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

DANCING is becoming so popular that [illegible] taking dancing lessons, two stepping their dances and subscribing their wives.

IT'S nothing to see three or four hundred married couples in any dance hall, but not one of [illegible].

A GIRL will [illegible] or [illegible] a man.

MOST [illegible] Puritan. The American girl dislikes [illegible] as much for his money.

HE hasn't time if he tires the girl out. When she feels [illegible] herself and the latter.

AND when the second one can't dance any better than the first one will be hesitation again.

ANY man can dance as much as he wants. He never runs out of girls, but once in a while he runs out of quarters.

SOME stay [illegible] all night. The only thing they have to do is to and some time will suffice from [illegible].

THE lack of rest doesn't bother them, they go so that they can [illegible].

THE [illegible] doesn't care how much you sleep on the dance floor providing you wake up long enough between dances to buy tickets.

STILL, you could buy five lollars worth of them at once and leave word with the ticket seller to wake you up when they're all gone.

ONE guy went into a dance hall [illegible] in the evening bought $20 worth of dimes and left [illegible] for the morning.

HE thought the floor manager was a night clerk.

ONE fellow has danced with the same girl every evening for the last six months. The only way the management could separate them was to have them get married.

TWO hours after they were married, both of them had danced with everybody in the hall.

YOU very seldom find any "wall flowers" in a dance pavilion. No guy is going to pay seventy-five cents or a dollar to lean up against some lathe and plaster.

OF course, sometimes no girls will dance with him but he doesn't care. If the worst comes to the worst he can go home and get his wife.

PEOPLE are perfectly willing to pay a dollar or so to get crush and walked on in a dance hall, but they've got no use for the them the same service for a nickel.

ruined

Many a first impression, socially or in business, has been ruined by some seemingly little thing.

IT'S so easy to get off on the wrong foot with people—whether it be in an important business contact or simply in a casual social meeting.

It pays in life to be able to make people like you. And so often it is some seemingly very little thing that may hold you back.

Notice today, for example, how you unconsciously watch a person's teeth when he or she is in conversation with you. If they are unclean, improperly kept, and if you are a fastidious person, you will automatically hold this against them. And all the while this same analysis is being made of you.

What do your teeth say about you today?

Only the right dentifrice — consistently used—will protect you against such criticism. Listerine Tooth Paste cleans teeth a new way. The first tube you buy (25 cents) or the free sample (see coupon) will prove this to you.

You will notice the improvement even in the first few days. And, moreover, just as Listerine is the safe antiseptic, so Listerine Tooth Paste is the safe dentifrice. It cleans yet it cannot injure the enamel.

What are your teeth saying about you today?

New York, May 24.—Seven years ago [illegible] Police was lifted out of a shell crater at Verdun by French stretcher bearers and carried to a field hospital for badly needed first aid. His wounds were a total loss to France—one side of his face and head riddled by German shells which had shattered the left side of his jaw bone. THE HE MAN By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

Thrilling Story of Man and Girl Who Are Utter Strangers Living Together in African Jungle

HOW THE STORY STARTS:

ANDREA PELLOR, the daughter of an impoverished British baron, is engaged to a millionaire diamond merchant whom she does not love. Stealing away from the Indian Ocean Hotel she sees a flying machine on the beach, being gotten ready to ascend by two men, a white and a giant black. Upon the spur of the moment she cries: "Take me with you!" He straps her in and they are away. She becomes frightened and asks to be taken back. He says he is not going back. The engine goes wrong and they land in the midst of a village in the African jungle. The natives hail him as a friend.

CHAPTER VI.

HER anger had died and in its place had come into her eyes something terribly potent, the unforgettable look of a hunted thing at bay. The man knew that look, knew to his cost that no familiarity with it could ever breed contempt or dull the sudden shame in the heart of the hunter. His hands grew suddenly cold and clammy.

"I want to ask you," continued Andrea, "to implore you, to take me back. If not tonight, then tomorrow. Flying or on foot, if only we could start now." Her face broke into the wistful smile of pleading childhood—the heartrending smile of woman on her knees. "I will say that it has all been my fault, that you did nothing beyond what I asked you to do in bringing me with you, if only—if only you will take me back. Will you?"

The man clenched his teeth. "I would if I could. I've told you that already," he said almost in a whisper. Then his voice grew clearer and colder. "It would take eight days by any means at my disposal—eight days there and eight days back. I can't afford it and nothing would be saved or gained as far as you are concerned. It would only entail a loss I have no right to give."

His mood hardened Andrea's. "You mean that when it comes to choosing between my personal loss and yours, you see no reason to hesitate."

The man flushed under his tan and his eyes gleamed as though her words had given them new life. "Mine would not be a personal loss," he said. "I am not a loafer nor am I here for my pleasure. You will understand, in time, more than I can tell you."

"I see," said Andrea. "My life against the interests of your employer. Are you a foreman?"

He shrugged his shoulders and ignored the question. "Your life?" he said. "What are you worth, after all, coming down to carpets and tacks? The best specimen of woman in this camp represents an investment on the part of the husband of two pounds ten shillings—say three pounds at the most. Every girl child she bears and rears brings him a hundred per cent. return and in addition she keeps house, cooks, chops wood, totes water and tills his fields."

Again Andrea jerked him out of his role with her inconsequence. "What does tote mean?" she asked icily.

"To tote means to carry, fetch, lug, haul."

"Thank you," she interrupted. "By the way, did you mean to measure me against that three-pound standard?"

"I did," said the man.

She threw out her arms in a gesture of disclosure and laughed. "To think," she said, "that it's only a few weeks since I was knocked down to the highest bidder at twenty thousand a year!"

"Not you," said the man quickly. "If you yourself could be bought with money, who knows? Possibly you would be cheap at the price for a woman is like a mine—by the surface indications one can never tell to what depths the vein of gold may run. He wasn't buying you. You never even thought it. I happen to know him, perhaps better than you do, and I can assure you that the tinsel and the pomp he was bargaining for, innocent enough in themselves, would have become despicable and tainted by his possession."

He was silent for a moment; then, just as Andrea's lips were opening to remark, he added, "I'm glad you brought him to my mind. The thought of him has freed me from my regret. You're here, I'm glad you are, and you shall stay. The only question is whether you are going to sulk or whether you will smile and accept the cure of the philosophy of contrasts."

"That's a new one," said Andrea.

"Not at all," replied the man. "I'm only harping back to the definition of ruin that you thought didn't quite pass over your head. The philosophy of contrasts is based on the idea that a rut and death are one and the same thing. Life is steeper than it used to be; one has to climb it by switchbacks or go under."

"You've missed your vocation, White Man," said Andrea flippantly. "You should apply for the succession to Father Vaughan's mantle, get your pulpit and turn missionary to society."

"I've got the face of the earth for a pulpit," said the man easily, "and I couldn't do with less."

"I had suspected that there was something colossal about you," replied Andrea quickly, "and now I know it. It is your impertinent self-sufficiency——"

"You misunderstood me," interrupted the man, himself unmoved. "What I meant by that flamboyant statement was that no philosophy has ever lived except through example and one can't fulfill the creed of contrasts with less than the whole world for a playground."

"Playground!" repeated Andrea. "You don't mean it's a cheerful philosophy? You—why, you never laugh!"

"Don't I?" said the man with a kindlier smile than she had yet seen; then his face grew grave again. "Its backbone is content without hilarity."

"And has it never failed?"

His eyes wandered to the half-wrecked aeroplane. "Yes, it has failed—once."

His Eyes Swerved

"A case of 'physician cure'—" began Andre.. and stopped. His eyes had swerved back to hers and the naked look of regret in them frightened her. "Well," she continued, glancing up hastily, "do you really want to—to convert me?"

He started in his chair and if he had been thinking of his personal troubles, promptly forgot them. Had it been merely a chance shot, he speculated, or was this young lady possessed of that rarest of virtues, a quirk of mischief in the face of adversity? "Women know no conversion except through love," were the exact words he had used. He recalled them perfectly and watching in silence a telltale flush rise from her bare neck into her hot cheeks he perceived that she also remembered.

"Oh!" cried Andrea, "I think you are horrible."

"I haven't said anything," remonstrated the man.

"That's why," snapped Andrea. "You could have said something. You keep quiet and give a beastly significance—significance!"

He helped her out. "To a little joke," he finished and added quite primly, "Be sure I shall do all in my power not to convert you."

The heat of the day had quite passed. Andrea felt of her arms. They were soft and cool. She laid them on the table and studied them as though she never had noticed them before. She was thinking that all her fright had died away. She was alone with a man, alone by over a hundred miles, and yet—never had she felt less lonely, more secure. She tapped the table and her eyes narrowed as if they were measuring. Presently she threw up her head, turned to her companion with a smile and said, "I've decided not to sulk, White Man. Tell me what your philosophy will do for me if I give it a tryout."

Long Breath

The man drew a long breath of relief, examined the ash of his cigar and flicked it off. "First of all," he began, "it will lift a fever from you, the fever of hastening from one little thing to another. That's the malady of society, the dread of an idle and empty hour in which the mind must feed upon itself or starve. Be fair with me. Look back and tell me if your memories aren't all stock variables; I mean don't they all fall into set and dry classifications?"

"I understand," said Andrea. "You mean they are all crushed into about six bins like staples at a grocery."

He gave her a look of undisguised admiration. "I mean exactly that. My philosophy will give you the secret of the happy idle hour. Never again can a city or a great house quite smother you for it will be in your power to sit swelteringly, your eyes fixed ten thousand miles away on a girdle of high-peaked huts, on black women pounding millet, pot-bellied pickaninns at play, a blotch of bronze statues taking an hour off from pose and chatting the news of the hour."

"And an aeroplane," added Andrea, trying to push two surprised huts out of the way."

The man made an impatient gesture. "Here you go," he exclaimed, "bouncing, climbing out, on the one personal element!"

"Why!" cried Andrea, eyes innocently wide. "What's personal about an aeroplane?"

He looked at her grimly and ignored the trap. "It will give you things to think about," he continued, "and when you have them you'll no longer be afraid of thought in itself and when you are free of that fear you will find that sincerity ceases to be conversational bad taste. It becomes, rather, a weapon, the only probe that can pierce the armor of individuals, for, of course, you know that every personality wears a shell, thick or thin, close-jointed or loose."

"I know," exclaimed Andrea eagerly. "I was thinking something like that when we were flying, only different. I was thinking that every person you meet you have to climb. Some are just mounds and you walk over them; some are cliffs that give you a broader outlook the higher you go and some are just—just great sand boulders with no hand or foothold."

"That's good," said the man, "but you're wrong. It's different. It's eyes glinted anxiously. "I won't say 'there you go' again."

"Oh," cried Andrea, disappointed. "What do you mean? Do you think I'm always looking for the personal?"

"You always will until you're unsexed," he replied.

"That's a masculine shibboleth," stated Andrea, "a cliché of the male mind that's worn out of meaning like a word you repeat over and over till it's just rot."

Be Personal

"Well," answered the man apparently ignoring her attack, "let's be personal. Why not? What am I—mound, cliff or boulder?"

"When I thought it out you were a boulder."

"And now?"

Andrea avoided his eyes. "You're not a mound."

"Am I still a boulder?" he insisted.

She turned her eyes and looked him up and down fleetingly. "What else will it do for me?" she asked.

"What else?" he repeated. "Ah, yes. The philosophy, eh? It will make you gloriously independent—relieve you to the three elements of content—health, honor and an inner flame."

"Let's begin with the inner flame," she suggested. "It sounds mystic."

Lovely Daughter of English Baron Escapes in Aeroplane From Distasteful Marriage

STORY OF THREE STARS

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

A LADY in Saginaw, Michigan, writes inspiringly: "He made the stars also, for signs and for seasons, for days and for years,' saith the Lord. Surely it is commendable in us to notice these things, and therefore I ask you this question: What are the three stars that I see just now in the southwest? I saw them when I was a child at school in St. Mary's-of-the-Woods, Canada, and we used to call them the Three Wise Men that offered gifts to the infant Jesus. Those stars are in a row and apparently at equal distances apart. I have never known the proper names of them.

"Every time I talk of stars somebody says 'Mary Pickford' or 'Gloria S.' It seems that to be modern one must think in terrestrial stars. However, I know you will not. But I never did see so many wonderful stars as there are in the sky these nights. They truly give us the faintest shadow of the magnitude of the superlatively enormous universe. I truly know they were always there, but their light has only now penetrated my ignoble uncomprehending brain, which proves the immutability of God."

This letter was written in the middle of April, when the stars of Orion were still clearly visible, setting in the southwest early in the evening. Now they are gone before the sunset light has faded from the sky. But we shall see them again, rising in the east in November evenings, and their story is equally interesting, whether they are present or absent.

The three equal stars, equally spaced, that the lady speaks of, mark the "Belt" of Orion. By their brightness, their similarity to one another, their appearance of companionship, and the military straightness of the short row in which they stand they exercise an attraction for all eyes hardly matched by any other objects anywhere in the stellar heavens.

In all ages and all lands they have been admired. Among the many names that they have borne are: "The Three Kings," "The Magi," "The Three Wise Men of the East," "The Three Marys," "Our Lady's Wand," "The Bands of Orion (see Job), "Jacob's Rod," "The Rake," "The Ell and Yard," "The Yard-stick," "The Three Stairs," and "Napoleon," the last name having, according to Burritt, been bestowed upon them by the University of Leipsic in 1807. Their individual names, all of Arabic origin, are in order beginning with the upper and westernmost, "Mintaka," "Alnilam" and "Alnita," and their Greek letter names, in the same order, are, "Delta," "Epsilon" and "Zeta." Richard Hinckley Allen in his "Star Names" records a legend of the native Australians who call the three stars "Young Men, dancing a corroboree, the Pleiades being the Maidens playing for them."

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"To lie on a bed of roses."

The son-in-law and successor of Montezuma, Emperor of Mexico, captured by the Spanish, is said to have replied to a subject who complained of the hard floors of the prison, "Am I, then, lying on a bed of roses?"

"A bloodless victory."

This expression, used to describe a quick and easy victory, first used by Catullus (110-87 B. C.), the Roman general, to his army when he found his position completely covered the army of Mithradates.

"Honesty is the best policy."

This is the finding of Cervantes recorded in "Don Quixote."

"Nothing great was ever accomplished without enthusiasm."

Emerson spoke a great truth when he indicted this line in "Circles."

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

HOW HE GOT A RHINOCEROS TUSK

YES, I would rather see a rhinoceros in the zoo than out in the jungle, I can tell you. They frighten you enough to look at them—let alone to have them run after you.

One day we were going through the jungle, and I heard the native driver give a terrible shout.

With that Jumbo raised his trunk high up in the air and let out the most awful shriek. You know when an elephant makes a noise it sounds like that of a shrill trumpet.

I knew there was danger near, and Bobby, Bunny and I looked at each other.

Bunny leaned over the side of the howdah and said:

"Look! There he is—there!"

Through the underbrush a great big rhinoceras was rushing toward us!

The native guided the elephant over by a tree. There was nothing to do but just wait and see what happened.

The rhinoceros gave a tremendous lurch aiming his horn at the breast of the elephant, when one wily native gave Jumbo a quick jab with a sharp prong he had in his hand.

Jumbo swerved to one side and back to the tree. The rhinoceros made an attempt to follow in the same direction and with all the power of his huge body thrust himself forward—then he gave a terrific roar.

What do you think he had done?

He hadn't plunged his tusk into Jumbo—he had missed him—and had thrust it right straight into the tree. It had gone in with such force that it had made a wide split in the tree.

What a relief to us! We sat down and with a sharp knife cut the tusk out of the tree and brought it home and had it mounted, and—well, here you see it hanging on my wall.

How to Have Beautiful Hair

To be charming and attractive you must have beautiful hair.

Beautiful hair is not a matter of luck, it is simply a matter of care.

You can have beautiful hair if you shampoo it properly. Proper shampooing is what brings out all the real life and lustre, the natural wave and color, and makes it soft, fresh and luxuriant.

Your hair simply needs frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, but it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soap. The free alkali in ordinary soap soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it. This is why millions of women, everywhere, use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo.

This clear, pure, and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in.

It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil.

The hair dries quickly and evenly, and has the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it really is. It leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive and a four ounce bottle lasts for months.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Evvy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming.

By Ann Lisle

SO he laughingly turned on the lights in the car, got out pencil and note book and sketched his suggestions. At once I became absorbed in the possibilities of the new campaign he was mapping out. On and on we worked.

I forgot where we were, forgot time and everything but the advertising game. Suddenly I had the queer sensation that a pair of eyes were glaring at me. I tried to shake it off, but I couldn't.

I looked up. On the sidewalk stood Jim. His eyes were fixed accusingly on my face.

The expression of Jim's face, when I looked up to see him peering into the lighted car in which Mr. Rockhill and I were working at my client's advertisements, acted like a cold shower on my enthusiasm. At once I began to feel absurd. I hate apologies, but I wanted to make a dozen in one breath. This second is ridiculous ending to our dinner party out at the Hoadley country home.

"Jim!" I cried.

Howard Rockhill opened the door to the car and got out with pompous hospitality, which made me feel as if he were offering Jim the freedom of our street or of the midnight air. I choked back a hysterical laugh as Mr. Rockhill declaimed:

Delighted at Chance

"Mr. Harrison, I am delighted at the chance that brings you along while I'm still on deck. Your business, I hope, has terminated successfully. You missed a pleasant enough little party at my old uncle's. Delighted to meet you, Mr. Harrison. Fate smiles."

"Quite so," said Jim dryly. "I hope—your business is concluded and that—I don't intrude."

"Oh, no, no! Not at all," beamed Mr. Rockhill patronizingly. "We're finished—quite. I don't need to do a thing now except my 'i's for Mrs. Harrison. She gets an idea very quickly, I do hope, dear lady, I haven't kept you on till all hours over this advertising of mine. And I trust I've not tired you out."

"I am tired," I confessed, asking nothing better than to get away from Mr. Rockhill's prating. "But I'm glad that you and Mr. Harrison have met at last. Good night."

Jim echoed my good night and followed me into the elevator. The minute he led me into the apartment I turned and caught him by the lapels of his coat.

"Did you ever?" I chuckled. "Wasn't but the funniest—"

"Please Anne," replied Jim, detaching himself with icy dignity. "Don't try to laugh it off—now."

"What else is there to do?" I cased in a dazed way. "It must have just choked you. Your face told me how funny we must look sitting there composing advertising copy at 11 o'clock at night."

"Eleven!" repeated Jim. "So you'd sat there an hour!"

"An hour! What do you mean?" I gasped.

"Possibly you arrived at 11. But it's after 12 now. I suppose you'd have been sitting there yet if I hadn't interrupted."

His tone froze me.

"Why, dear," I protested. "It was silly, I'll admit, but I thought you'd laugh. You see, we started talking over this work on the way home from Hoadley's. And Mr. Rockhill got so absorbed that after we'd dropped Betty and Ralph he just couldn't make his brain behave. His enthusiasm made me forget everything but business—"

"Business!"—

Jim caught me up and hurled that word at me as if it were a missile. I stared up at him in a tangle of confused feelings. I found myself repeating sullenly, "It was business."

Protests Too Much

"Methinks the lady does protest too much," quoted Jim dryly. "I don't see the prime necessity of sitting out in front of our apartment in the wee sma' hours of the morning and giving the neighbors food for—thought—at least. They don't know how absorbed you are in business."

"Jim, be fair," I pleaded, holding desperately to my poise and striving to make him get my viewpoint on the situation, which was no situation. "I grant you we must have looked a pair of sillies. But anyone who came along probably thought we were waiting for someone. I don't believe I did anything that need seriously endanger the Horizon position of pride. When I caught you staring at us and realized what it was all about, I thought we'd have a good laugh."

Blind Man's Buff

DRAWN BY POPINI

Copyright, 1923, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

WHY is it that some girls, as well as men, believe the search for a mate is as great a gamble as a game of blind man's bluff? Whom will he blindly catch?

But when you come to think about it—no matter how hazardous it may seem—is there really any chance about his "catch."?

The magnate of her heart attracts him—eyes are not needed for that—and what possible hazard or gamble or chance is there when Cupid pushes her into outstretched arms?—Popini.

ELINOR GLYN TALKS ON LOVE AND MARRIAGE

HOW TO REFUSE A MARRIAGE OFFER

I AM asked to write on how to refuse a marriage offer. It very much depends upon how the offer is made!—and whether the girl has been aware that it is coming, or whether it takes her by surprise.

Elinor Glyn

In these modern days girls are not unsophisticated novices, when they reach the age when proposals are generally made. They have, even in Europe, where the customs between the sexes are more stiff than in America—seen boys at parties in the holidays, and have a very clear general notion that love is shortly going to appear on the horizon!

The girl who for her own vanity deliberately encourages a man to think she intends to marry him when she does not, is a mean coquette, and will certainly earn the man's contempt when he finds that she has been only playing. If she has given him reason to believe she loves him—has led him on and deceived him—no matter how delicately she actually refuses him, in the end, she will never be able to efface from his mind the sting of having been made a fool of.

Greatest Compliment

So it would be useless to give advice to these minxes. They can shift for themselves.

But there are many girls who are just bright and gay, and friendly to all their admirers, and even just a little sweeter to one or two than others, and who receive a number of proposals in the course of a year. They have not meant any harm, and they hate to hurt feelings.

To these I would say: Remember that when a man asks a woman to marry him, he is paying her the greatest compliment that it is possible to pay her. He is asking her to share her life with him—though in these days of easy divorce it must be difficult to keep the thought from the mind, that the thing need not be forever and ever as once it was! But at all events he is asking her to share his name and his honor.

So Sadie must be very careful not to wound his self love.

If she can't keep shin from saying the actual words, which she ought to try to do when she sees that they are impending, she must at once be kinder and gentler than she ever been; and tell him that she has only been enjoying life, and has not thought seriously of anything and that she must be free a little longer. She must tell how honored she feels, but that she does not really love him, and somehow she has not thought about it, beyond just to have a good time.

He will perhaps try to persuade her to change her mind. Then if she is quite certain that she never means to accept him, she must be firm and say that it would be no happiness to either for her to marry him not loving him, when he is such a dear fellow he ought to find a girl who really be to him all he desires.

Both Stupid

Of course, if Sadie has been deliberately flirting with Billy, and letting him kiss her, and so on—then it will be very difficult to make him believe she is not a mean flirt, even if she has only really been silly and drifting along, and taking pleasure in physical thrills.

In this case she had better say straight out that they have have both been very stupid, and she is very very sorry—and of course she has been in the wrong, but she meant nothing.

If she has been on these terms with him, he will have developed her cheap anyway, so she can back out of it on the ground that he was so nice to dance with, etc., etc. . . I that she just was —foolish. and he must forgive her.

The girl who goes on playing with one young man after another, is simply withering her own power to love, or have any real love—because it is only her senses and her vanity which are being pleased, not her mind or soul at all—and so she is tarnishing herself all the time.

And when the moment comes when she seems to feel that she really loves, she can never be sure about it, or hold any belief that the emotion will last.

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My brother is soon to announce his engagement, and my mother and father wish to give his fiancee an engagement present. What would you suggest as a suitable gift? Please name several. They wish to spend about $50 or $75, or more if necessary.

When should the gift be given to the young lady—before or after the engagement is announced.

L. H. G.

ENGAGEMENT presents usually differ from wedding presents in that they are more personal—that is, they are given to the girl herself and do not have any particular connection with her new home.

A personal gift and one that can be purchased for the amount you designate is a set for a young lady's dressing table. Have her monogram put on the articles after you are sure they are exactly what she wishes.

More personal gifts would be: a handsome tortoise shell pin for her hair, a silver monogrammed picture-frame, a silver case for her jewelry, a suit case or traveling bag, a vanity case and a beaded bag.

A desk set—and there are many beautiful new kinds this year—would be an appropriate gift.

Send the gift at once after the announcement of the engagement.

Sure Way to Get Rid Of Dandruff

USE LIQUID ARVON

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely. That is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon, apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

USE LIQUID ARVON

ROMANCE OF JEWELS

THE "ORLOFF" DIAMOND

IN all history it would be impossible to find any other jewel which for centuries has played such a leading part in the rise and fall of empires. By theft, torture, murder, the ill-omened stone passed from owner to owner, its tragic history ever gathering round it.

When Sultan Baber, in the 16th century invaded India, overthrew the Hindu monarchy and founded the Mohammedan Empire of the Great Moguls, he seized the "Great White Stone," which then weighed 793 carats. As Tavernier, a century later, describes it as weighing 280 carats, it is believed that the "Orloff" was the missing no!

The memoirs of Baber tells us that it was the spoil of a Hindu temple, having for thousands of years been held in the hand as an orb by an image of the god Krishna.

Shah Jehan, who constructed the famous Peacock Throne of Delhi, valued at thirty millions sterling, used for the eyes of the peacocks four splendid diamonds, one of which was reputed to be the Koh-i-Noor.

When Nadir Shah of Persia invaded India and seized the throne and the treasure house, he named the stone the "Koh-i-Noor," meaning "Mountain of Light." Then the Afghans robbed Persia and the Greeks and Romans overran them all, the barbaric splendor of the Koh-i-Noor ever luring men and leaving a trail of tragedy, until finally it found its way back to India in 1813.

Then came the Sikh Wars and the Punjab became part of the British Empire. In the Treaty the Koh-i-Noor was specially named and handed over to the British Crown, to be placed among the Crown jewels.

It is now cut to 106 carats and valued at 100,000 pounds.

FRIENDS NOTICED IMPROVEMENT

Wonderful Results from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bethel, Wis.—My female trouble was brought on by overwork. I had worked in stores and had to do heavier work than my strength could stand, and had to be on my feet most of the time. Finally I had to give up this work entirely and just stay at home. Doctor's medicine did not give me much relief, and my mother wanted me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took a couple of bottles of it and thought it did not help me as much as it should, so I gave it up to try something else. Nothing I took helped me much, so I finally decided to give the Vegetable Compound another trial and to take enough of it to make sure it would help me. I have taken it over a year now and it has brought wonderful results. I have gained from 98 to 110 pounds and am keeping house now. My friends all notice the change in my health. I will be glad to answer all letters that women write to me about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. W. G. MONSON, 1615 Park Ave., Beloit, Wis.

Mrs. Monson is willing to write to any woman suffering from such troubles.

BOSTON AMERICAN

Largest Evening Circulation in New England—May 24, 1923

Boston in 1921 handled 3.22 per cent. of the total foreign commerce of the ports of the United States, ranking as the seventh city.

What Are the Hearst Publications?

What Do They Mean? What Is Their Purpose? Here is an Answer From the Man That Makes Them

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Hearst newspapers have gradually spread from one city to another until they now reach from Boston, on the Northeast, to Los Angeles in the Southwest; from Atlanta on the Southeast to Seattle in the Northwest. They are published daily in Atlanta, Baltimore, Washington, D. C., New York, Boston, Rochester, Syracuse, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, Forth Worth, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

The cities in which the Hearst papers, including magazines and other periodicals, circulating millions, are numerous, and that makes the following question interesting to many Americans who know that WHAT MEN READ THEY ARE.

This is the question:

Will you define in as few words as you can, what the Hearst newspapers and other Hearst publications mean, and what their object is? I have been informed that W. R. Hearst was born rich, that his father was worth many millions, and that he was not compelled to work. I would like to know what his idea was in starting newspapers all over the country, which must involve constant work of the most wearing sort.

That is an extract from the letter of an intelligent reader. The answer can be given with authority, for W. R. Hearst, who owns ONE HUNDRED PER CENT. OF ALL THE HEARST PUBLICATIONS, having no partner, recently answered the question in Baltimore. He had just purchased from Frank A. Munsey the Baltimore News and the Baltimore American, the latter the oldest daily newspaper in the United States.

The Mayor of Baltimore, the Governor of Maryland and other prominent citizens invited him to a dinner to express their appreciation of his coming to Baltimore. The question of our reader is answered in the following short talk made by W. R. Hearst on that occasion:

I will not make a formal address, but I certainly desire to say a word of sincere thanks for the very kind and encouraging welcome which has been extended to all of us here in Baltimore.

I know how important a city Baltimore is industrially, commercially, financially, politically—how important a part it plays in the life and economy of the nation. And what I did not know of Baltimore I have learned from the very able and enlightening address of Mayor Broening.

I naturally, therefore, have much satisfaction in being able to possess a newspaper in this city.

And there is another reason for gratification. Baltimore is a great Southern city, and my people were Southerners. The Hearsts, my father's people, came from South Carolina. The Appersons, my mother's people, came from Virginia. And whenever I acquire a paper in the South I feel in a sense as if I were returning to the home of my forebears.

But I know that the important thing is not how I feel about coming to Baltimore, but how Baltimore feels about it.

I do not want my friends in Baltimore to be in the state of mind of a Western friend of mine, who, when he received a letter marked "Important," looked at it quizzically and said:

"Yes, important to him, but not to me."

I know that I can only show my appreciation of the generous welcome extended here by earnest and effective service to this city and its citizens.

I know, too, that Baltimore does not lack good and faithful service from the newspapers published here. I know how high those journals stand in the journalism of the nation. I know how capable and conscientious are the men who conduct those journals; how effective their service to the citizenship.

But there is one form or phase of service which conditions may enable me especially to perform, and which I hope I shall often have the opportunity to render to Baltimore; that is, to unite the power and influence of the various publications which I have here and there at important points throughout the country in support of the things which Baltimore or any one of those localities desires and requires.

In conclusion, let me say a brief word of the intent and character of my publications.

You have probably sometimes heard them described as extremely radical. I do not think that they are. I do not think that I am very radical. Indeed, I sometimes think that as I have grown older and slowed down a bit I am really not radical enough.

The policies for which I and my publications fought, and in fighting got the reputation of being radical, have nearly all been accomplished—and, being in successful operation, are no longer regarded with apprehension.

It is ancient history now to refer to the election of Senators by the people. That policy did not rend the structure of government to its foundations, as timid conservatism predicted; nor did woman's suffrage destroy the fabric of society; nor have direct primaries upset the balance of our political processes.

In fact, the chief objection to direct primaries is that political processes are not sufficiently different in the States that have direct primaries and those which have not.

So that I do not at all feel that I am too radical, and my only fear is that a more valid criticism might be that I am somewhat of a back number.

Indeed, I go back for my political inspiration to the days of Lincoln and his declaration for a government "of the people, by the people and for the people," and further back yet to the days of Jefferson and his declaration in favor of a government "for the greatest good of the greatest number," and still further back to the time of Washington and his appeal for a government free to serve the best interests of our own people without foreign entanglements or alliances of any kind.

As a matter of plain fact, I am in some things an utter conservative, determined to conserve, as far as I possibly can, those principles and policies of the fathers which for so many years have made our country the freest and the happiest, the most prosperous and the most powerful nation upon the face of the earth.

There is, however, one firm principle of mine, which may be regarded by some as radical, but which to my mind is merely a matter of professional journalistic ethics—of common journalistic honesty.

That principle is the right of the public to a square deal on all occasions—to a fair show for its "white alley." I consider a newspaper to be the retaining attorney for the public, and I believe a newspaper which is faithless to that trust is as much of a traitor as an attorney who betrays the interest of his client who employs him.

This may be radicalism, but it is constructive radicalism, conservative radicalism.

It makes for the preservation of our liberties, the protection of our properties and the perpetuation of our American institutions.

SWORD OF DAMOCLES OVER REPUBLICAN HOPES

By Herbert Kaufman

THE trophies left in the White House by Roosevelt as distress the President that he orders their removal to the Smithsonian Institute.

Mr. Harding is not a nimrod. He doesn't believe in hunting big game.

More's the pity, when one remembers how his predecessor stalked the jungles of industry just as boldly as he trailed the Amazon and the Niger.

Roosevelt's administrations were signalized by the constant pursuit of predatory interests. Sugar gougers, coal profiteers, and wool barons soon learned to hold the big stick in proper respect.

Then, stock-raising and beet-growing Senators didn't turn the Capitol into a Rotary Club and design tariffs to promote their personal fortunes at the expense of national welfare.

Anthracite operators couldn't exact arbitrary toll from consumers, nor did Loree with his feudal ideas and arrogant backers defy Federal investigators or withhold facts on production and shipments from the Interstate Commerce Commission of that day.

Mr. Harding would do well to keep a few Roosevelt souvenirs around.

They might remind him of hides which the Sherman act and the Interstate Commerce Commission once took, and can again whenever he steels his tender heart sufficiently to evoke their full power.

Privilege and Washington at present seem too friendly for popular taste. The upward trend of living costs and unanswered demands for a control upon greed are swords of Damocles over Republican hopes.

Lo, the Rich Indian

Destiny loves a joke. As she watched the Osages move from their former fertile lands to the gaunt and barren section they now occupy, her chuckle must have rung through Olympus. Oklahoma politicians missed their bet that day.

For once the red man decidedly got the best of a bargain.

The 1,500 acres allocated for their reservation proved more valuable to the Osages than a similar home site in Golconda. The greatest oil field in the world underlay that fragment of land.

Figures furnished by the Interior Department show that the tribe has since received more than $136,000,000 in royalties, and their wealth hasn't even begun to peter out. In seventeen years the average annual income of every member exceeded $5,000 and in 1922 nearly reached $1,000 a month. Lo, the rich Indian, this time.

Who Took the Bribes?

Pacific cables are sizzling. Governor-General Wood accuses unnamed members of Congress and influential private citizens of taking bribes to support Philippine independence.

If General Wood is indicting in slanderous statements and can't or won't prove his case, he is unfit to hold office.

If he knows what he is talking about and shows goods, every Congressman and Senator whose palm has been allegedly crossed should be impeached, tried, and, if guilty, jailed like any other crook. The matter can't be allowed to rest in status quo.

The man at Manila must either cut bait or fish.

Fashion Cracks the Whip

Fashion changes her mind. Paris waves the wand and embonpoint returns to style.

The human reed is no longer de rigueur; willowy figures are out of the running.

To be smart one must now produce evidence of bust and hips; the bustles and pads of yesterday reappear at Auteuil and Longchamps, while devotees of the modes feverishly ply knife and fork, gorge potatoes and other starchy foods and hasten to regain the lost lines of yesterday.

Dieting is out of favor. The full dinner plate returns from the wars with the full dinner pails.

World Courts and the League of Nations may not be working units, but femininity, earth over, still jumps to the crack of the dressmaker's whip.

The Hardest Job on Earth

Governments aren't so easily changed. Bonar Law retires from British premiership and throws the responsibility of selecting a new Cabinet head upon King George.

Stanley Baldwin succeeds to the hardest job on earth.

The task of keeping a fifth of the globe safe and satisfied under one flag is some undertaking.

With labor throwing monkeywrenches into parliamentary works, Poincare snarling against interference in the Ruhr, Mustapha Kemal by turn threatening and whining at Lausanne, disruption in China, discontent through India and volcanic indications from Egypt to Mesopotamia, not to mention the sad state of affairs between London and Moscow, the steersman of yonder storm-tossed ship of State will need more wit and will than Pitt or Disraeli or Gladstone ever possessed or required.

Meanwhile, Lloyd George, who isn't mentioned in dispatches, sits on the sidelines and awaits the inevitable hour of his recall.

The lion has only one such whelp.

The Message of the Melting Pot

It is unwise for any country to have vast bodies of folk concentrated in particular localities and sections living behind the barriers of language.

Our entire eastern littoral is already heavy with such coagulations. Of late years all important cities have tended to become babels.

This invasion has proceeded faster than community digestion; we are dyspeptic with alienism, which menaces the common understanding, without which we cannot unitedly handle problems or face perils.

We rub elbows and erase prejudices and antagonisms. At contact we find that the main difference between most of us is a matter of accent, tailors and table manners; intrinsically, we're pretty much the same. Racial dislikes are founded upon hearsay far oftener than experience.

Thus, ignorance has counseled bigotry straight through history. We believe the worst of those whom we have not met. No one particular land breeds supermen.

The melting pot detects few differences in the brains and veins it finally blends and fuses.

APPEALS ON LIQUOR SLANG

NELSONVILLE, Ohio, May 24. Claiming the word "whiskey" was never used during the trial and conviction of Frank Harrington, of Lathrop, on the charge of bootlegging, counsel for Harrington has asked the State Supreme Court to reverse the judgment of the lower courts.

Attorneys for Harrington contend that the words "white mule," "corn liquor" and "moonshine" mean nothing in the eyes of the law. They asserted that these are the only incriminating words used against their client by the prosecution.

Board of Arbitration

Editor Boston American:

Every man knows, or at least ought to know, what the State Board of Arbitration represents. It is a body appointed by the Governor of the State to settle labor disputes. The coal teamsters and helpers, the taxi drivers, the milk drivers of Boston and the entire division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway refused arbitration by this body. They are considered the direct cause of 8,000 boot and shoe workers of Brockton being on strike, through what they consider unjust decisions. Isn't it time the proper authority investigated this body and found the reason why labor cannot place more confidence in a State organization?

Race Criticism

Editor Boston American:

I read in your paper about some of the B. U. students forming Ku Klux Klan in the college, and also read the statement of Dr. Lannin. Why does he speak so hard of the Catholics, Jews and try to put the Negro so low?

Now, in the first place, according to history, the Catholics were the first to make this great country of ours and after them came the Negro. He was worked, driven and sold like a horse, and the money put in some bank for some young man to go to college and address the younger ones like Dr. Lannin.

Unable to Work

Editor Helping Hand:

I am alone with two girls, eleven and fifteen. I am not able to work, as I have hemorrhages from the stomach. I would like some clothes for them if you could spare some. They are in desperate need of underclothes. Anything to make over I would be glad to do. I don't mind about myself, as I can stay in, but they must go to school.

MRS. L. V.

Would Help More

Editor Helping Hand:

Thank you for the addresses you sent. I have heard from each one. I sent a box of clothing to each, and received a letter of thanks from each. Glad to be able to help in this good work. Friday a widow with three or four boys asked for shoes for them. I have two or three pairs I will be glad to send to her if you send me her address.

MRS. L. B.

Many thanks for all you are doing. Mrs. F. M.'s address will be sent you.

For Needy Boy

Editor Helping Hand:

I have miscellaneous clothing, such as blouses, underwear, jacket, sweater, stockings and neckties for a boy of twelve, which I will gladly give to a needy boy. If you will furnish address, I will mail package. I hope to have more to send to assist your splendid work.

MRS. J. C.

You will be put in touch with Mrs. W. M., who has a boy that age, and who will be very grateful for the clothes. Thank you.

Box of Baby Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a box of baby clothes, especially flannels, I would gladly mail to someone who would need them for a baby.

Clean Out Your Trunks

Editor Helping Hand:

Your column has done so much for the poor people and I would like to help a little. I have two straw hats, one blue serge suit, one dress, size 38, and a coat and several other things. I wish more people would clean out their trunks and closets and give away the things they will never use.

A. M.

Good suggestion. You have been sent the address of E. D., who is greatly in need of the things you mention.

Needs Garden Tools

Editor Helping Hand:

Illness left me in such a condition that it is impossible for me to work any length of time in the shop, but by fishing and growing vegetables for sale it has been possible for me to support my three small children. If some of your kind readers have any discarded fishing tackle or garden tools to replace mine, which are past repairing, I would greatly appreciate it an' pay for transportation. I cannot afford to buy new ones.

More Than a "Mite"

Editor Helping Hand:

We live in Rhode Island, but read the Helping Hand appeals every night and feel so interested in your good work that we want to add our mite. Below please find a list, and kindly send the addresses of people whose needs these things will fill, and we will send them parcel post prepaid.

MRS. T. J. E.

Your addition is much more than a "mite." You will be sent the address of Miss F. T., who wears size 16; of Anna R., who wears size 18, and of Mrs. C. M. W., who wears size 34, and who would, I think, greatly appreciate the hats. Many thanks.

Suit for Girl

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a suit for a girl or small woman, size 16 years, in good condition, that some one could make use of.

MRS. L. C. S.

You will be sent the address of M. J., who will be very grateful for it. Thank you.

List of Articles Sent

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you kindly send the address of some needy person who could use the following articles.

E. O. R.

The address of R. W. R., whose husband has been unable to work for three years, will be sent you. Thank you.

Needy Mother Aided

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a box of baby clothes ranging from infancy to one and a half years. May I have the address of some worthy mother?

MRS. H. C. M.

The address of Mrs. G. D. M., who is greatly in need of clothes for her two babies, will be sent you.

Pleads for Aunt

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a little girl nine years old. I live with my aunt, and she has to work very hard for me and her, and it takes all the money she earns to buy us something to eat, and all Winter she kept me warm. She had to pay 30 and 24 cents for a twenty-three-pound bag of coal, and honest, my poor auntie has not got anything decent to wear. If some good lady would help my poor auntie, I would be so happy, as she gives me a good home. She wears size 46 and 6½ shoes. My auntie can make over clothes, so if you have anything for me she is Miss Fix-It.

EVELYN.
